Lenin, Surprise Party
Discuss This Topic

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1920.

A bare-legged, bare-footed, long-haired fanatic disturbed the solemnity of Westminster Abbey, snuffing out the altar candles and making this speech:

"I am a prophet. A great crisis has arisen, and if there be no general repentance of the people then the great country of America will come and dominate England."

If that prophet could come here for a week, study some of the Wall Street newspapers and some of the Wall Street statesmen, he would go back to Westminster Abbey, light up the candles again and say: "Please excuse me I was mixed up and got turned around. I have been in the United States and I perceive that England is dominating there."

Two thousand negroes, yelling with excitement, waited at the Chicago railroad station to greet Jack Johnson, prize fighter. The police took Johnson off the train a little ahead of his destination, because "it was felt that it would have a bad effect on the crowd and perhaps bring about race trouble to allow the black prize fighter to be made a hero."

Possibly, but what about allowing ANY prize fighter, white or black, to be made a hero anywhere? While the Chicago police encouraged making a hero of a sack fighter, "eminently respectable gentleman" in the country's biggest city, New York, are organizing prize fighting and the hero worship of fighters on a ten million dollar scale.

They are creating a centre of brutality, blackguardism, thievery and disease, as they well know.

Watch news from Russia and Poland. With one exception the big nations of Europe have had about as much fighting, killing and spending as their peoples will stand.

England, France, Italy and Germany do not know what the crowd of "cannon fodder" would say if another big war were announced for next week.

The one exception is Russia. There Lenin and Trotzky have two hundred million human beings with whom they can do about as they please. They have given them the land and promised them the earth. They have organized a "Red army" of more than two and a half millions. And they do not treat their army as this country treats its army. They do not promise them a bonus and then cheat them out of it.

The soldier in Lenin's "Red army" knows that his family, relatives, all of them, are getting an extra allowance of food and of money because he is in the army. He is fighting, as the soldiers of Cæsar and Alexander used to fight, knowing that after the victory the man at the top will see that they all get something.

Something new is 1920 Russian Bolshevism with its army and its hundreds of millions back of it. It is as though Father Time had gone into the icebox of history and taken out something, preserved for thousands of years, vast masses of population, asking no questions, with powerful leadership.

Who would have thought a few months ago that today Lenin would be saying down the law to England and France? At Brest-Litovsk, where Germany once robbed Russia, Lenin will soon be telling Poland what she can keep of her own territory, telling France and England just how Russia proposes to trade with Germany, and casually announcing that she intends to have for herself the free use of the harbor of Danzig.

One news item will interest millions that care little about Eastern complications agitating Europe or the "fifty thousand suns making up the cluster in the constellation of Hercules."

Mrs. Frank C. Roberts' was ill, beyond cure, suffering intensely of multiple sclerosis. She could not move, could do nothing for herself. Wishing for death she said to her husband, compelled to witness her prolonged agony, "Please mix some Paris green with water and put it where I can reach it."

He did, she drank it and died. Now they send him to prison for life, saying, "He who kills another of his own desire is a murderer."

Our forefathers often killed their wives and daughters to keep them from falling into the hands of Indians to be tortured. Under the law that imprisons Frank C. Roberts for life, they would all have been put in jail. There is an interesting topic for a debating society.

Should a man be put in prison for helping his wife to escape torment that could only end in death? And if, knowing the law, he refused to help her, would he be a coward, afraid of the consequences to himself or merely a good, law-abiding citizen?

LIGHTWIND AS YACHTS START

Conditions Not Favorable as Contestants Go After Victory in Final Race

Off Sandy Hook, July 27.—With only a light breeze behind them, Resolute and Shamrock swung into position today for what it was hoped would prove the deciding race in the boating classic.

Prospects were not exceptionally good, and old yachting men were of the opinion that even if the boats finished within the allotted time the race would be a slow one.

The challenger Shamrock was the first to start for the course. Under mainsail, club topsail and inner jib she rounded the Spit of Sandy Hook at 9:45, daylight saving time, and stood seaward on the port tack.

The Resolute started out at 10:05, and was quickly jockeyed into position. Both crews were confident, and only wanted enough wind to make the race a real one.

Today's course is over that scheduled for yesterday's "no contest" affair—fifteen miles to windward and return.

Sir Thomas Lipton has made a statement to the effect that, win or lose, he will challenge again next year for a race to be sailed in 1922.

The baronet may be of that opinion, but there does not seem to be any reservedly that this is the last event that will be sailed under the present rules.

In other words British designers of yachts do not think it possible to build a boat to cross the Atlantic and then be called on to beat a locally-built craft in the light winds prevailing around our coasts at this time of the year.

TO BREAK UP AUTO 'TRUST'

Essex District Attorney Is Confident He Will Indict "Thieves' Leader"

District-Attorney S. Howard Donnell of Essex County today began a probe which he solemnly promises will result in the indictment of "the big fellows" at the head of the auto stealing ring in Greater Boston.

All the resources of his office and all the resources of the Lynn police department are to be devoted to an investigation in that city recognized as the chief market for stolen cars.

Men of means and standing, hitherto unsuspected in the gigantic conspiracy, are to be investigated, and this investigation will be prosecuted relentlessly, "without fear or favor."

"We will bag them all," said Mr. Donnell in announcing the launching of his campaign to break up the "trust."

"But we are not so keen about the smaller fry. We do not care so much about the man who drives a stolen

WOMAN AUTOIST HITS BACK BAY CHILD

Eleanor Currats, sixteen years old, of No. 49 Hickey-st street, was struck by an automobile on Massachusetts avenue near Dundee street today, sustaining minor injuries. The machine was operated by Margaret G. Moynahan of No. 22 Adams street, Dorchester. The girl was treated by a physician and taken home.

YACHT RACE POSTPONED

Aboard U. S. S. Goldsborough, off Sandy Hook, N. J., July 27, via wireless—The New York Yacht Club's regatta committee at 11:30 o'clock, daylight saving time, today, announced a postponement of the deciding race between Resolute and Shamrock IV. At that time both yachts were at the starting point, but hardly moving, as there was no sign of a breeze. If sufficient wind does not develop by 2:30 this afternoon the race will be put over until tomorrow.

MARINES GUARD MISSIONARIES

Americans Sent to Tung-Chow, Where Chinese Soldiers Are Looting

By International News Service.

London, July 27.—American Marines have been sent to Tung-Chow, China, to protect American missionaries, according to a Pekin dispatch to the Times today.

News had been received in Pekin that Chinese soldiers were surrounding Tung-Chow and had begun to loot.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen, former provisional president of China, has sent a letter to the Japanese War Office accusing the Japanese of secretly aiding General Chang Tso-Lin in the Civil War which has been raging in northeastern China, said a Tokio dispatch to the Daily Express.

General Chang Tso-Lin was one of the commanders of the Chi-li forces that rugged the Anfu, or militarist, faction under General Tuan Chi-Jui.

MIKADO IS SHOWING SOME IMPROVEMENT

Exclusive Cable to International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Tokio, July 27.—Emperor Yoshihito of Japan, who is gravely ill, is suffering from glycosuria, gout and a nervous breakdown, it was learned today. The attending physicians state, however, that he is showing some improvement.

London, July 27.—A report was circulated today by a news agency that Emperor Yoshihito of Japan was dead. The Japanese Embassy would neither confirm nor deny the report.

4 AUTOISTS PAY TOTAL OF $120 IN FINES

Fines totaling $120 were imposed upon four autoists in Hingham Court today by Judge Kelly for violating automobile laws. John F. Stanton of Cambridge was fined $75 on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor and $5 for being drunk. He appealed and was held in $200. Arthur J. Bartlett of Wollaston paid a fine of $10 for speeding. Pritchard von David of Scituate paid $10 and costs of court and a charge of not having a rear light was filed. Cornelius Flynn of Shrewsbury paid a fine of $15 for speeding, $5 for not having a registration certificate and $5 for not having a license.

NO PEACE RESOLUTION EXISTS, SAYS COLBY

Washington, July 27.—The State Department cannot promulgate the House resolution, declaring peace with Germany, for the simple reason that such a resolution does not exist.

This was the burden of a brief filed in the United States District Court by United States District Attorney Laskey, in behalf of Secretary of State Colby. The brief was in answer to the mandamus proceedings brought recently by Harry S. McCartney, a Chicago lawyer, seeking to have the war ended by promulgating the resolution.

NATICK DRIVERS STRIKE; GIRL DELIVERS COAL

Natick, July 27.—Fifty coal wagon drivers for three companies here are on strike, demanding 60 cents an hour. No coal is being delivered, except in emergency cases. One dealer's daughter is driving an automobile truck, delivering wood and small orders of coal.

FOCH ARMY GOING TO GALICIA

Reported Moving Across Germany to Relieve French Troops

By International News Service.

Berlin, July 27.—According to a German news agency dispatch from Frankfort today, French troops are passing through Germany to Poland on the pretext of relieving the French forces of occupation in Upper Silesia.

Boulogne, July 27.—An Anglo-French conference to discuss details of the proposed peace parley in London between Russia and the Russian border states opened here this afternoon.

Premier Millerand, who arrived at noon, was accompanied by Marshal Foch and by M. Marsal, Minister of Finance in the French Cabinet. Premier Lloyd George arrived from London at the same time.

The presence here of Minister Marsal is significant, indicating that possibly Premier Lloyd George has something to offer Premier Millerand in the way of recognition, by the Soviet government, of Russia's national debt. It was presumed that the British Premier desired M. Marsal's expert opinion.

The refusal of the Bolshevik government at Moscow to recognize the debts contracted by the old imperial government of Russia has been the chief stumbling block in the way of recognition of the Soviet by France. This arose from the fact that great quantities of Russian bonds are held in France.

Mr. Lloyd-George was somewhat set back when he learned of dispatches from Paris quoting French government officials as saying that France would not participate in a general parley in London unless the United States was an active participant. He refused, however, to make any comment. It was originally believed that the Boulogne conference would be finished tonight, but present indications are it will extend over until tomorrow.

Vienna, July 27.—The Soviet War Office has directed the Polish armistice delegates to pass through Russian lines on the Brest Litovsk road near Baranovitchi at 8 o'clock on Friday night, July 30, according to a Moscow wireless dispatch picked up here today.

MISS EHRMAN TO WED WORLD WAR VETERAN

The engagement is announced of Miss Helen Ehrman, daughter of Mrs. Harry B. Metcalf of Arlington, to George Frederick Fowle of Wellesley. Mr. Fowle served with the U. S. Ambulance Corps on the Italian front in the World War.

Woman Leaps 11 Stories to Death

New York, July 27.—Mrs. Anna Grunnar, sixty years old, stood poised on the ledge of an eleventh-story window of the apartment house at No. 285 Central Park West.

While a crowd of terrified men and women stood breathless in the street, Mrs. Grunner calmly adjusted a handkerchief over her eyes and leaped into space.

Her body struck the pavement almost at the feet of several nurses who were tending baby carriages.

The plunge was made from the apartment of Richard Seidenberg, for whom Mrs. Grunnar was a servant. One of those who saw the fatal leap was Mrs. Traher, a tenant of the adjoining apartment, who was on the roof. She fainted.

The Seidenbergs said that Mrs. Grunnar had been ill and expected a visit from a physician. To add to her sorrows, she had just received a letter from her sister in Germany, who mentioned a divorce.

A week ago, it was said, Mrs. Grunnar made a will disposing of a goodly amount of money. The police took that document.

GLOUCESTER STEAMER SINKS OFF NOVA SCOTIA

Clark's Harbor, N. S., July 27.—The steamer M. S. Kenny, of Gloucester, foundered on Hospital Reef, when she attempted to enter the harbor here in a fog. A large hole was made in her bottom and it is believed that the cargo and ship will be a total loss on account of a heavy sea which is hampering the efforts of a salvage crew.

TRAINS STALLED BY DRAWBRIDGE TIE-UP

Three Boston & Maine railroad suburban trains filled with commuters bound for work in Boston were stalled twenty minutes at the drawbridge just out of Everett today, the signal which operates the drawbridge went out of commission in the rush hour, but was repaired and traffic proceeded.

YOUTH INJURED IN ELEVATOR WELL FALL

John D. McNamara, sixteen years old, of No. 3 Burleigh street, Cambridge, employed by the Metropolitan Ice Cream Company, stepped into the open elevator well at No. 12 Winter street today and fell twelve feet to the basement, receiving multiple minor injuries. He was taken to the Relief Hospital.

SUES SAUGUS FOR $30,000 AFTER 6 MONTHS IN JAIL

Fred Wallace of No. 12 Second street, Cliftondale, who says he is a veteran of the world war, brought suit for $30,000 damages against the town of Saugus for an alleged six months' imprisonment in the Salem Jail for failure to pay his personal poll tax in 1918.

Premier Lloyd George Sprints for Train

London, July 27.—Premier Lloyd George today gave ocular proof of the falsity of reports that he is "a very sick man." The Premier looked particularly fit when he left for Boulogne early this morning and was full of "pep."

At the railway station he sprinted along the platform in a manner that would have done credit to an athlete. In view of persistent reports of his illness, spectators were greatly surprised at the healthful exuberance of the Welsh statesman.

FALL RIVER WITHOUT WATER SEVERAL HOURS

Fall River, July 27.—This city was without one drop of water during a few hours Monday when the main pipe of the water works burst. The accident caused a great deal of damage to the surrounding properties. Happily there were no fires during that time.

GOVERNOR WELCOMES VISITORS

Formally Notified of His Nomination by G. O. P. for Vice-Presidency

Northampton, July 27.—With thousands of visitors thronging her gaily decorated streets, the city of Northampton gave itself over completely today to the exercises in which Governor Calvin Coolidge was to be formally notified of his nomination as the Republican candidate for Vice-President of the United States.

It is estimated that 20,000 people are here for the exercises.

The ceremony on Allen Field late in the day and the entertainment of their guests appeared to be all that mattered in Northampton. Flags hung across the streets and practically every business house and residence was festooned in the national colors.

One enthusiastic merchant placed a huge banner across the entrance of his place containing only the slogan which has come to be a by-word for the Governor of the Commonwealth, the words "Law and Order." Few other slogans were seen around the city, although Governor Coolidge's picture on placards was in nearly every store window.

Following the Governor's wishes, the exercises for today were arranged to be as simple as possible. After the fifty-four members of the notification committee, headed by Governor Edwin P. Morrow of Kentucky, have been entertained at luncheon by the Governor and Mrs. Coolidge in their home on Massasoit street, they will all walk informally to Allen Field, an eighth of a mile away, where the exercises will be held.

Governor and Mrs. Coolidge, with their two sons and the Governor's father, had a quiet breakfast at the White House Inn, a family hotel on Elm street, where they are stopping temporarily. Their small house was taken over completely by the caterers in preparation for the notification luncheon.

GOVERNOR IN FINE TRIM.

The Governor saw only a few personal associates during the morning, preferring to rest with his family in preparation for the strenuous program of later in the day.

He told his visitors that he never felt better. Vacation on his father's farm at Plymouth, Vt., he said, had put him in excellent physical trim.

On a motor trip to Amherst College Monday night the Governor and his father stopped near the college chapel for a father and son talk on the eve of the son's new personal honor. During this personal conference both recalled that thirty years ago they were having a similar conference near this chapel when Calvin Coolidge was entering college.

While appreciative of the loyalty of his townspeople in doing him honor on this day, the Governor expressed regret that they had been put to so much bother. But the citizens don't feel that way about it.

"We have just begun to appreciate Calvin Coolidge," a leader of today's festivities said.

Early today there was a band concert by the Northampton band in front of the Draper Hotel. Members of the Coolidge home committee, composed of 100 citizens, estimated that the total attendance for the day was over 30,000 persons. Political allegiance was not considered in the makeup of this committee, about 25 per cent. of them being Democrats.

Many members of the notification committee, in which every State and Territory is represented, did not arrive till today. Governor Morrow arrived in Northampton shortly after midnight.

SEA OF WAVING FLAGS.

Allen Field is sufficiently large for any crowd and the committee planned on an attendance of about 30,000. Each was provided with an American flag and Governor Coolidge will walk to the small rostrum centrally among a sea of waving flags.

There were no chairs on the field except for the speakers. The place had been equipped with a sounding board and its location at the bottom of a natural terrace, aided in the acoustic effect.

Dr. L. Clark Seelye, president emeritus of Smith College of Northampton, was chairman of the notification exercises, and, after an invocation by Rev. Dr. Kenneth B. Welles of this city, Dr. Seelye was scheduled to give the introductory remarks. The other speeches in their order were, address of welcome by Mayor Michael J. Fitzgerald of Northampton, address of notification by Governor Morrow, and the speech of acceptance by Governor Coolidge.

BURLESON WARNS POSTAL MEN OUT OF POLITICS

Washington, July 27.—Postmaster-General Burleson sent a notice to all postmasters and postoffice employes calling attention to the Civil Service Commission ban on politics, and he added a warning against postal employes engaging in "pernicious political activity during the campaign."

BOSTON MAN PAYS $10,000 FOR PRIZE GUERNSEY BULL

George W. St. Amant of Boston and Falmouth purchased Milk Maid's Ultra King, a prize Guernsey bull, for $10,000 from Harry S. Dulin of the Woodlea Guernsey Farm, near Leesburg, Va.

'Disappearing Dog' Is Coolidge Favorite

Northampton, July 27.—Wanted, very much in Northampton, one second-hand bicycle, and one "permanently disappearing dog."

They are wanted by John and Calvin Coolidge, the two young sons of the Governor.

"Oh, let's not talk of notifications," begged John and Calvin. "We are tired of notifications.

"But, you know" (this from John), "if I had a dog, I could train it to stay with me always. I could teach it tricks; I could make it understand when I spoke; I could live with us."

"Ah, an there! Wait a minute, my boy," requested the Governor.

"I am perfectly willing for you to have a dog, but, so soon as you have got acquainted, I want it to be the kind of dog that runs away and remains permanently disappearing. That's the kind of dog that makes less fuss; that's the kind of dog that's not always getting hairs in the carpet and barking at friends when they come to call. Therefore, you may have a dog, only let it be permanently disappearing."

The talk took place in the breakfast room of the White House Inn, where the Coolidge family is staying over the notification ceremonies.

DISAGREES WITH FATHER.

John Coolidge does not agree with his father, the Vice-Presidential candidate, as to the desirability of the permanently disappearing canine. "No kind of a dog at all!" says he. "It's not the kind I want."

Calvin, Jr., however, has wishes more attainable, at least so it seems to the Governor. "Now, Cal, here," explains the Governor "wants a second-hand bicycle. Of course we know that H. C. L. still is high. We know that machinery has gone up; we know that as Vice-President Marshall said, the one thing the country needs most is a good five cent cigar, but we also know, next to that, probably, a second-hand bicycle for Calvin, a really good second-hand bicycle is quite a necessary article just now. Would help Calvin to get over the ground. You couldn't let us know of a bargain, if you met one, could you?"

"ALWAYS A GOOD BOY."

Governor Coolidge's father, Colonial John C. Coolidge, watches all the doings with calm eyes. It is from his father that the Governor takes his calm poise, and his ability to think well before rendering momentous decisions. Colonial Coolidge today spoke of his son as a boy.

"Always a good boy," said he, "though between you and me, I never expected him to make a figure in public life. You see, he was always a quiet lad. Never said what he wanted to do, except that he wanted an education. But I always found when I told Cal to do anything and went away, that it was done when I came back.

"In the vacation which the Governor has just finished, up at Plymouth, he used to cut out quite a little more work for me than I would have for myself. I used to take the boys and go fishing. When I came back, I would find the Governor had been cutting hay all the time I was gone. I had to cure the hay, so that made plenty of work ahead. Yes, Cal never forgot that he was brought up on a farm; he takes to the work whenever he can get back."

WANT FORE RIVER WORKER REINSTATED

At a meeting of the Metal Trades Council in Hancock Hall, Sunday, a vote was taken declaring that Frank W. Lynch had been unjustly discriminated against by the Fore River management.

A committee of three was appointed to wait on General Manager Wakeman of the Fore River Co. and demand that Lynch be reinstated and paid for his lost time.

On the answer of Mr. Wakeman depends whether a general strike will be called at the Fore River yards.

BRITAIN TO PUSH HOME RULE BILL

Lloyd George Fails to Modify His "Mailed Fist" Policy Toward Ireland

London, July 27.—Premier Lloyd George's "Mailed Fist" policy toward Ireland apparently remains unmodified. The cabinet, after having failed in Friday's eight hour conference to come to an agreement, discussed the subject again for hours yesterday. Simultaneously another regiment was despatched to Cork.

Persistent reports circulated over the week end that the Premier was prepared to grant the Irish Dominion Home Rule, using the good offices of J. H. Thomas, the labor leader, to negotiate with the Sinn Feiners, were practically discountenanced by Lloyd George's own statement in the House of Commons that the government was going to push the present Home Rule bill to adoption.

It was hoped that the bill would pass both Houses before Autumn, but the Premier informed Commons that this was now impossible, although the measure would be pressed after the August recess. This means that the bill will be held up till Winter, which strengthens the suspicion entertained in many quarters that the government is hoping another solution satisfactory to the Sinn Feiners will be found before it is necessary to force down Ireland's throat a measure despised both by the North and South.

State Prison School to Graduate Pupils

Fifteen inmates of the State Prison at Charlestown, who were unable to read or write when they entered the institution, will participate in the closing exercises of the prison school at the State Prison this evening.

These men have made good progress during the past year under the instruction of Prison Officer Stephen R. Anderson and his corps of six teachers, picked from among educated men serving in the prison.

The prison orchestra of a dozen pieces will furnish music. There also will be solos by several of the prisoners who appeared in the minstrel show last Winter.

Commissioner of Correction Sanford Bates, his two deputies, Edward C. R. Bagley and Henry Higgins, and Messrs. Parkinson and Hobbs of the State Board of Education will attend with Warden Elmer E. Shattuck.

CRIPPLED BOY WALKS AT ST. ANNE DE BEAUPRE

Quebec, July 27.—A boy, crippled since babyhood so that he had never walked except on crutches, was reported miraculously cured at the shrine of Saint Anne de Beaupre. He came from St. John's, N. F. After the morning mass he walked from the church unattended and without his crutches, according to reports. Two other cures are reported.

CROSSED WIRES CAUSE FIRE IN THEATRE

GIRL 'TRUNK VICTIM' WAS LURED TO DEATH BY CITY LIFE

HUSBAND IS TOLD OF CRIME

Young Mississippi Farmer Is Deeply Affected as He Identifies Wife as Slain Girl

Birmingham, Ala., July 27.—The girl victim of the New York-Detroit trunk murder mystery was Kitty Lou Frondon, daughter of a farmer of Sturgis, Miss., and the wife of a young farmer named Jackson.

Positive identification of the woman, whose mutilated body a few days ago was taken from the trunk in New York, was made when relatives of Starkville and Sturgis examined a photograph sent to them from Birmingham and telephoned confirmation of her identity to enquirers here. The picture was one of the woman who, up to this time, has been known as Katherine Jackson and the supposed wife of Eugene Leroy, who is now being sought as her slayer.

VICTIM FARMER'S DAUGHTER.

Simultaneous with identification of the murdered victim came the announcement that a Detroit detective was on his way to Birmingham to "enlist the support" of A. A. Tatum, a local linotype operator, in the solution of the mystery. It was understood from the messages from Detroit that Tatum is to be taken back to Detroit for examination there.

Katy Lou was the daughter of Hampton Frondon, farmer of moderate means. When she was seven years old her father died. Her mother later married Alfred Vaughn, a farmer. Her girlhood was not happy, her former friends said, and while she was still in her early teens in 1918 she married Kid McCoy Jackson, a farmer boy and not a prize fighter, as the news dispatches have stated.

Of her life with Jackson she soon tired and she left him and came to Birmingham, remaining here several months and then returning in Nashville, where she went to Detroit where she met Eugene Le Roy.

GIRL NEVER DIVORCED.

Jackson, the husband of the murdered victim, was deeply affected by news of her death. He says he still loved Lou after she left him. They were not divorced, he says, and he knows nothing of any plans she may have had to remarry. She was nineteen years old, Jackson says, and he is twenty-one.

The photograph of the slain girl was identified by her husband, her stepfather, Alfred Vaughn, and her second cousin, J. A. McGee, a deputy sheriff of Starkville.

None of them knows of Leroy, as Katy Lou never mentioned any such name in any of her letters.

Police Push Search for Missing Le Roy

By Universal Service.

New York, July 27.—The police of New York, Detroit and several other cities were bending every energy today toward the finding of Eugene Le Roy, alleged sweetheart of the married woman whose body was found in a trunk in an express office here, following its shipment from Detroit.

The search for the missing Le Roy is being guided by Robert Speed, assistant prosecuting attorney of Detroit, who arrived here with Lieutenant of Detectives Mitte. They have received a rigid check on the man under arrest in Chicago is not Le Roy.

A request was made that the body of the slain woman be shipped. The request was referred to Health Commissioner Dr. Royal S. Copeland. In event he refuses permission, Mrs. Olive E. Trumbull of Detroit, and perhaps others, will be brought here to make certain the identification.

The autopsy on the dead woman was being examined today to learn if poison had been administered. Several things indicated to the medical examiner that the dissection took place after death and was not the cause.

HOLD LYNN WOMAN ON BAD CHECK CHARGE

Mrs. Sarah Tarr, who conducts a shoe stitching room on Union street, Lynn, was arraigned in Lynn court today, charged with uttering false checks in seven counts. She pleaded not guilty, the case was continued to Thursday, and the woman was held in $1,000 bonds.

DONNELL TO ASK AUTO ARRESTS

Essex County Prosecutor Finds Enough Theft Evidence to Indict Several

"AFTER MEN WITH BRAINS"

"The men we are after are the men with brains and money who have perfected the criminal organization. They are the men who have escaped even suspicion, while their dupes are serving time.

"For example, we have learned of one man through whom a lot of eight cars was transferred. This man is honored among his fellows. He is not branded as a thief. He is the kind our investigators will train their heavy guns on.

Interest was general in Suffolk County in the Essex County probe. It is felt Mr. Donnell may bring to light facts which will result in numerous indictments in this and Middlesex counties.

District Attorney Donnell is youthful for a prosecutor and full of enthusiasm. Men who know him express confidence that his promise to get "the prominent leaders in the stolen auto traffic will be kept.

Mr. Donnell said:

"I don't mind saying that we obtained helpful information from Albert Frank and it is surprising how much has come voluntarily from citizens and through the mail. We are getting evidence every day, but I shall not call a special session of the grand jury because our investigation of the auto theft ring will not be completed for two more weeks and then it will be time for the September sitting of the grand jury.

The evidence at hand shows that stolen cars are handled in wholesale lots. I had previously obtained a glimpse of the scope of the traffic when the wife of a judge in Peabody lost her car in Charles street, Boston. It was stolen while she was making a call. The patrolman to whom she complained showed no surprise, she said, and blandly remarked: That is the twelfth stolen on this street today. That incident made me think.

"The reports in the newspapers following the surrender of Barney and information from other sources intimated that the auto theft ring was entrenched in Essex County and Lynn was named as headquarters. It felt that it was my duty thoroughly to get the matter and see how much truth there was in the reports, and I found that many of them were true."

ENGLAND BARS MGR. MANNIX

Australian Archbishop's Attack on Britain Is Resented by Lloyd George

London, July 27.—Premier Lloyd George announced today that Archbishop Mannix, the Australian prelate who made a violent anti-English utterance in the United States recently, will not be allowed to land in England.

London, July 21.—Here is the full text of the sensational speech made a few days ago by Premier W. H. Hughes of Australia at Bendigo, which created a profound stir throughout the British empire:

"Today the British empire is surrounded by enemies. It is being attacked by Bolshevism, Sinn Feiners and Germanism. The British empire is a league of nations bound together by ties of blood and race. If you break Britian you break Australia.

"When we see in our midst, therefore, men who would break up the empire and plunge a dagger into its very heart, what are you to think of such men, except that they are traitors? I care not what you think of England as England, but I am concerned about what effect that will have on Australia. It means death for us, and because of that I shall smite them hip and thigh.

"When Archbishop Mannix said that the sentiments he uttered were supported by the bulk of the people of Australia, he said that which was not true.

"He has only one objective, and that is the destruction of the empire, or on any rate the founding of a republic of Ireland. I am not going to say that Ireland has no grievance, but I am irrevocably opposed to a republic of Ireland and will fight it tooth and nail by every means in my power, because it means the dismemberment of the empire, and the dismemberment of the empire means the destruction of Australia."

Mgr. Mannix says his one hope is that England will declare war on its enemies and that Ireland will fight England, and that America will fight England.

If that hope is realized we will see a war the like of which the world has never seen. Hope for the peace of the world lies not in a League of Nations, but in that firm alliance of understanding and co-operation which has existed for over a hundred years between America and Britain and between the British Empire and America.

REPUDIATE MANNIX.

"If it were necessary to choose between the Kaiser and that man as to which was the greater criminal, I know which I would choose. Had the Kaiser was pushed into this, but Mgr. Mannix went of his own free will.

"The Australian people repudiate him. They want America to understand that Australia is a unit and devoted to the British empire and intends to remain in partnership with the hand of friendship to peaceful nations, particularly America. We realize that our destiny and theirs coincide in the Pacific, and we want America's aid there."

Fort Warren's First Baby "Gunproof"

Baby W. Horace, who is being held by his father, Ordnance Sergeant Horace Brooks, sleeps while the big guns roar.

Baby W. Horace Brooks, the first child to be born at Fort Warren, has never winced, although sleeping under the roar of the guns of the fort. He is mascot of the ordnance section of the Northeastern Department.

Every one down at Fort Warren has fondled the eight-pound baby. Ordnance Sergeant Horace Brooks has recently been assigned.

The soldier baby is just four and a half months old and weighs fourteen pounds. It is a strong, healthy child, and the proximity of the forts big guns has not phased it to be a good type of soldier baby. It is said they have signs around this section.

5 YEARS IN JAIL FOR ELOPER

Vermont Man Who Ran Away with Married Woman Pleads Guilty to Kidnaping

Bellows Falls, Vt., July 27.—Following a plea of guilty to a technical charge of kidnaping, James B. DeCamp, Cambridgeport, was sentenced in court to not less than five nor more than six years at hard labor in State Prison.

His arraignment and sentence followed the bringing to trial of Mrs. Lillian Wray of Bellows Falls, charged with the same offense. Mrs. Wray's husband is a Bennington chain grocery store manager.

To further substantiate its claim the defense called witnesses to testify that Mrs. Pettibone complained of feeling ill on the day previous to the night she drank the fatal dose.

Mrs. Wray took the stand after reserving Bennington people testified that the prisoner was a "quiet, peaceful and inoffensive man."

According to Mrs. Wray's testimony Mrs. Pettibone came into the store on the morning of Armistice Day, November 11, 1918, just as she was about to close.

"I remember the incident very well," witness told the court. "I told Mrs. Pettibone that I was suffering from a severe headache and that I was going out to get something for it. She asked me what I took. I told her that I attributed it to a disordered stomach and that I generally took sweet spirits of niter and salts.

TALKS OF STRYCHNINE."

"What do you take for a headache? I asked her and she said, 'I found that salts weakened me very much and I came to the conclusion that my headaches were from something besides stomach trouble, and I have been taking something which acted on the heart; since I became so weak after taking salts.

"Well, then, what do you take?' and she said: 'I take strychnine.'

"You know how do you dare fool with these things, or words to that effect every time you have a headache, most of them don't afford it,' I said, and she replied: 'No, it is easy to take it when you know how. There is no danger.'

Q.—Just state what she said further, if she said she say anything about getting it?

Witness.—I asked her how she dared to fool with this sort of thing; if she had a doctor, and she said: 'No, it is easy enough to get it, if you know how,' but she didn't tell me how she got it or where she got it. She told me that I ought to try it as the store.

Q.—Did she tell you how she took the strychnine in these salts?

COMPLAINED OF HEART.

Witness.—Yes, that she couldn't swallow pills or tablets and she put it in a glass and crushed it with a spoon with the salts before she added water.

Q.—When did you know about this trial? When did you read it?

A.—Wednesday.

Q.—When did you read of it? Witness.—In a Boston paper.

Mrs. Wray then stated that following that conversation she never communicated with James K. Ratchelder, chief counsel for the defendant, DeCamp and Mrs. McQuaide left town.

Under cross-examination by Attorney General Archibald the witness testified that Mrs. Pettibone did not tell her how much strychnine she had in a dose, neither did she inform her where she obtained the drug.

Testimony that the poison victim complained of feeling ill shortly before she died was given by Mrs. Ina Hollester, who worked in the same department with Mrs. Pettibone at the Black Cat factory.

"Mrs. Pettibone told me, she testified, that she didn't feel well, that she was all tired out, and that her head ached."

Mrs. Jennie Knights, an employe at the Black Cat factory, also testified that on the same day Mrs. Pettibone complained that her spine hurt her; it hurt her terribly. Her eyes had flashes; she looked yellow and took fits of nervousness.

VICTIM'S NIECE WEEPS.

Both women, however, admitted under cross-examination that despite their condition Mrs. Pettibone worked as usual that day.

Several of the witnesses under fire of a score or more to be called by the defence testified to the good reputation that the accused man had in his home town.

Several of the witnesses, under cross-examination, said that they did not know the difference between reputation and character, although under re-direct Fred Stickles, for whom Pettibone worked at one time, admitted that the man might have an excellent reputation and yet have the vilest of characters.

The Rev. W. G. Towart, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Bennington, stated that although he had never heard the prisoner's reputation mentioned he believed it was excellent. He was one of the witnesses who stated that reputation and character were the same thing.

FLAMES DESTROY 5 COTTAGES

Fought by Bucket Brigades After Haverhill Engine Is Ditched Going to Colony

Newton, N. H., July 27.—The Summer colony at Wilder's Grove, Country Pond, were thrown into a frenzy of excitement when fire broke out in the grocery store of Ned Holmes and, fanned by a strong wind, sent the flames shreaming over several cottages.

The entire colony, including some forty cottages, was threatened. There is no fire department at the pond and the cottagers formed bucket brigades and tried to save their property.

Word was telephoned to Haverhill and a combination of the fire department with firemen were sent to the scene. The machine got stalled in a ditch in Plaistow, N. H., and could not reach the fire.

By strenuous efforts men, women and children succeeded in checking the fire, but not until it had destroyed the store and cottage owned by Holmes, burned two cottages owned by Charles Ford, cottages owned by Fred W. Moore, president of the Haverhill Chamber of Commerce; Dominick W. Kenny and Norris Pilling of Haverhill, Mass.

ORDERS ARREST OF VETERANS

Jail or Fine for Delinquent Legionaires Who Owe Dues and Wear Insignia

Veterans of the world war wearing the insignia of the American Legion and who as members of the organization cannot produce a paid-up membership card are subject to arrest.

Warning is also issued by the organization that young women wearing Legion pins or buttons, the gift of their fiance or war veteran friends, will also be prosecuted, as many young women who served during the war are affiliated with the Legion and rightfully entitled to wear the insignia.

Under the law, all these will be arrested, subject either to a $20 fine or imprisonment for thirty days, or both. Post commanders have been notified by Adjutant Spillane in a special letter, that all bona fide members will act as voluntary police in rounding up those who are not entitled to wear the emblem of the Legion.

Department Commander Colonel Edward L. Logan has sent a circular broadcast to all post officers and police officials which reads in part:

"I desire to call your particular attention to the enclosed copy of a law which has been passed by the State Legislature. This law means that any person wilfully and unlawfully wearing the American Legion insignia, in the form of a button or otherwise, for the purpose of representing that he is a member of the organization, is subject to arrest and punishment by a fine or imprisonment or both."

Tufts Seeks Creation of Auto Theft Bureau

District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex County today announced that he intended to file with the Massachusetts Legislature a bill calling for the establishment of a State bureau to keep track of all data pertaining to automobile thefts and other crimes, and to have attached to it competent investigators who can work with the district attorneys of the fourteen counties in the Commonwealth.

The proposed measure was suggested by the discoveries made by Tufts and his assistant, Frank Ford, assistant, George Stanley Harvey, in the course of their investigation of the Peabody case which resulted in their securing 168 indictments and from their general experience as public prosecutors.

BAILEY WELL AHEAD IN TEXAS PRIMARY

CITY HALL TO CLOSE AT NOON SATURDAYS

The City Council passed yesterday without opposition an ordinance which, subject to the approval of the Mayor, will cause City Hall to be closed at noon on Saturdays throughout the entire year.

MANCHESTER GETS BIG CORPORATION TAXES

Manchester, N. H., July 27.—The Amoskeag Manufacturing Co. will pay the city in taxes this year $553,493.05 on a valuation of $20,000,000. The taxes paid last year amounted to $486,705.32. The International Cotton Co. will pay $49,353.47 on a valuation of $2,711,740. The W. H. McElwain Co. pays $28,461.82, its valuation being fixed at $1,563,837. The Manchester Traction, Light & Power Co. is also among the heavy taxpayers, its bill for 1920 being $57,421. The valuation being $2,155,000. The People Gas Light Co. will turn $29,120 into the city treasury. The valuation of its holdings being placed at $1,600,000.

War Brides Seem to Be Repenting

Are war brides tiring of hero husbands?

This is the question the sociologists are asking while keeping an eye on the Suffolk County Superior Court divorce dockets where startling figures are arousing attention.

Whether it is war brides or hero husbands there is one ray of light and hope. Although the divorce figures are startling to look at, the marriage licenses have likewise registered at high and are keeping fair pace.

Here they are: Marriage licenses issued in Boston for 1915 were 9,322; for 1916, 10,134; for 1917, 11,175; for 1918, 8,778; for 1919, 9,343.

For divorces the largest number ever recorded for a year in the Superior Court was in 1918, when the probable figure of 1,799 was reached.

Then, for the first six months of 1920, 938 suits were entered.

By far the greater number of divorces are granted to women, and far the greater number of these are for desertion. It would seem that if the war has entered into the scheme of marriage and divorce, the hero of the war is not doing his share of matrimonial duty.

During the past year there were 626 cases where desertion was made the ground for severing matrimonial relations. Of this number 381 decrees were granted. Cruel and abusive treatment was the next on the list, with this number there were 412 cases, 261 granted. Intemperate and unfaithfulness follow in succession.

The figures on divorce were compiled today by Francis A. Campbell, clerk of the Suffolk Court, to be transmitted to the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

The Superior Court acquired jurisdiction over divorces in 1887. In that year the docket contained 216 suits of divorce. A steady increase has been maintained.

The banner month for filing divorce suits was March of this year, when 213 were placed upon the docket.

Claims Human Mind Is Not in the Brain

By International News Service.

Paris, July 27.—The most revolutionary medical discovery of modern times was announced in today's issue of "The Scientific Review" by Professor Troude, who claims that the brain is not the seat of mental activity, as has long been supposed.

From experiments made during and since the war by eminent surgeons, it is believed by the investigating physicians that the human mind is located in some part of the body other than the brain and possibly in the spinal cord, Professor Troude says.

Professor Troude refused to make public the names of the doctors from whom he had gathered his data, explaining that they did not wish to appear in public in connection with such a startling theory.

"They have furnished me with the full facts, citing war-time operations where all parts of the brain were removed without impairing the mental faculties," said Professor Troude. "Further experiments are now being made on dogs and monkeys to get absolute confirmation of the theory."

REBUFFED, SUITOR FIRES THROUGH DOOR

After making love to Mrs. Annie Giordino through the door of her home on Pearl street and failing in his plea to be allowed to enter, an unidentified man fired two shots through the door and fled. He was sought by Chelsea police today. According to Mrs. Giordino, the man said he was a police inspector. The same man made a similar attempt to get into the Giordino house a week ago, saying he was the landlord. Mrs. Giordino is an attractive young matron. Her persecutor is middle aged.

BOSTON DEATH RATE LOWEST SINCE 1896

Boston is becoming a healthier city to live in. Despite the record heat and humidity, the number of deaths in the week just closed totaled only 135, according to the records of the Boston Board of Health. This is the lowest record since 1896.

Forty-two of those who died were over sixty years of age and fifty-six were children under five years of age, according to the health board statisticians. Incidentally, it is stated, deaths from cancer in Boston have dropped amazingly.

FIANCEE SHIFTS LOVES AT SEA

Falls in Love with Steward, Now Spurns Boston Man She Came Over to Wed

With the arrival here of the big liner Winifredian came the details of a shattered war romance involving a Boston youth and a pretty English lass.

Alice Gertrude Chase, aged nineteen, of No. 32 Fielding street, Kensington, Liverpool, left her native home intent on marrying Anthony Trifro of No. 15 Bennington street, East End. On the trip across she changed her mind and for that reason is now held by immigration authorities.

Her refusal to carry out her agreement may mean that she will be deported. According to passengers on the liner the pair became little more than strangers before the voyage was ended.

Miss Chase admitted that Trifro sent her the money with which to defray her passage and to purchase her trousseau.

They met while Trifro was in Liverpool as a member of the crew of an American naval vessel. He sailed for the United States a week later. During the year that has elapsed since their meeting their correspondence led to their engagement.

PAYMASTER IS SHOT; BANDITS GET $10,000

Chicago, July 27.—Five automobile bandits shot and perhaps fatally wounded George Hasbrouck, a clothing house paymaster here, and escaped with $10,000. Two of the men are said to have been shot and wounded in a battle with the police. All five, however, escaped.

MOONSHINE FOUND IN HOTEL AT FALL RIVER

MAN KILLED, GIRL HURT IN CRASH OF AUTOS

Newport, R. I., July 27.—While trying to pass another car going in the same direction, with a third machine coming from the opposite direction, Barney Mirman of this city was killed in Tiverton and Miss Anna Zellermayer of the Outlet, Providence, severely injured.

GIRL 'TRUNK VICTIM' WAS LURED TO DEATH BY CITY LIFE

HUSBAND IS TOLD OF CRIME

Young Mississippi Farmer Is Deeply Affected as He Identifies Wife as Slain Girl

Birmingham, Ala., July 27.—The girl victim of the New York-Detroit trunk murder mystery was Katy Lou Frondon, daughter of a farmer of Sturgis, Miss., and the wife of a young farmer named Jackson.

Positive identification of the woman, whose mutilated body a few days ago was taken from the trunk in New York, was made when relatives at Starkville and Sturgis examined a photograph sent to them from Birmingham and telephoned confirmation of her identity to enquirers here. The picture was one of the woman who, up to this time, has been known as Katherine Jackson and the supposed wife of Eugene Leroy, who is now being sought as her slayer.

VICTIM FARMER'S DAUGHTER.

Simultaneous with identification of the murdered victim came the announcement that a Detroit detective was on his way to Birmingham to "enlist the support" of A. A. Tatum, a local linotype operator, in the solution of the mystery. It was understood from the messages from Detroit that Tatum is to be taken back to Detroit for examination there.

Katy Lou was the daughter of Hampton Frondon, a farmer of moderate means. When she was seven years old her father died. Her mother later married Alfred Vaughn, a farmer. Her girlhood was not happy, her former friends say, and while she was still in her early teens in 1918 she married Kid McCoy Jackson, a farmer boy and not a prize fighter, as the news dispatches have stated.

Of her life with Jackson she soon tired and she left him and came to Birmingham, remaining here several months and then returning to Nashville, where she journeyed to Detroit where she met Eugene Leroy.

GIRL NEVER DIVORCED.

Jackson, the husband of the murdered victim, was deeply affected by news of her death. He says he still loved Lou after she left him. They were not divorced, he says, and he knows nothing of any plans she may have had to remarry. She was nineteen years old, Jackson says, and is in twenty-one.

The photograph of the slain girl was identified by her husband, her stepfather, Alfred Vaughn, and her second cousin J. Mitt Cooper, a deputy sheriff of Starkville.

None of them knows of Leroy, as Katy Lou never mentioned any such name in any of her letters.

Police Push Search for Missing Le Roy

By International Service.

New York, July 27.—The police of New York, Detroit and several other cities were sending every message today toward the finding of Eugene Le Roy, alleged sweetheart of the married woman whose body was found in a trunk in an express office here, following its shipment from Detroit.

The search for the missing Le Roy is being guided by Robert Speed, assistant prosecuting attorney of Detroit, who arrived here with Lieutenant of Detectives Mitte. They have received word that the man under arrest in Chicago is not Le Roy.

A request was made that the body of the slain woman be shipped. The request was referred to Health Commissioner Dr. Royal S. Copeland. In event he refuses permission, Mrs. Olive N. Trumbull of Detroit and perhaps others will be brought here to make certain the identification.

The brain of the dead woman was being examined today to learn if poison had been administered. Several things indicated to the medical examiner that the dissection took place after death and was not the cause.

HOLD LYNN WOMAN ON BAD CHECK CHARGE

Mrs. Sarah Tarr, who conducts a lace stitching room on Union street, Lynn, was arraigned in Lynn court today, charged with uttering false checks in seven counts. She pleaded not guilty, the case was continued to Thursday, and the woman was held in $1,000 bonds.

"Fluffy Ruffles" Stirs Atlantic City

Mrs. Charles W. Myers of Memphis, Tenn., caused a mild sensation when she appeared on the beach at Atlantic City in this suit, that won her the title of "Fluffy Ruffles." All blue taffeta, ruffled and rippled from the hem of the skirt up, was topped off by a blue military cape. She wore white silk stockings and blue sandals.

DONNELL TO ASK AUTO ARRESTS

Essex County Prosecutor Finds Enough Theft Evidence to Indict Several

car to a shady garage, in reality a fence."

"AFTER MEN WITH BRAINS."

"The men we are after are the men with brains and money who have perfected this criminal organization. They are the men who have escaped even suspicion, while their dupes are serving time.

"For example, we have learned of one man through whom a lot of eight cars was transferred. This man is honored among his fellows. He is not branded as a thief. He is the kind our investigators will trail to their heavy guns on."

Interest was general in Suffolk County in the Essex County probe. It is felt Mr. Donnell may bring to light facts which will result in wholesale indictments in this and Middlesex counties.

District Attorney Donnell is youthful for a prosecutor, and full of enthusiasm. Men who know him express confidence that his promise to "get" the insolent leaders in the stolen auto traffic will be kept.

Mr. Donnell said:

"I don't mind saying that we obtained helpful information from Robert Paeff and it is surprising how much has come voluntarily from citizens and through the mail. We are getting evidence every day, but I shall not call a special session of the grand jury because our investigation of the auto theft ring will not be completed for two more weeks and then it will be time for the September sitting of the grand jury.

"The evidence at hand shows that stolen cars are handled in non-salable lots. I had previously obtained a glimpse of the scope of the traffic when the wife of a judge in Peabody lost her car in Charles street, Boston. It was stolen while she was making a call. The patrolman to whom she complained showed no surprise, she said, and blandly remarked, 'That is the twelfth stolen on this street today.' That incident made me think.

"The reports in the newspapers following the surrender of Barney and information from other sources intimated that the auto theft ring was entrenched in Essex County, and Lynn was named as a headquarters. It felt that it was my duty thoroughly to sift the matter and see how much truth there was in the reports, and I found that many of them were true."

ENGLAND BARS MGR. MANNIX

London, July 27.—Premier Lloyd George announced today that Archbishop Mannix, the Australian prelate who made a violent anti-English utterance in the United States recently, will not be allowed to land in England.

London, July 27.—Here is the full text of the sensational speech made a few days ago by Premier W. H. Hughes of Australia at Bendigo, which created a profound stir throughout the British empire:

"Today the British empire is surrounded by enemies. It is being attacked by Bolshevism, Sinn Feinism and Germanism. The British empire is a league of nations bound together by ties of blood and race. If you break Britain you break Australia.

"When we see in our midst, therefore, men who would break up the empire and plunge a dagger into its very heart, what are you to think of such men except that they are traitors? I care not what you think of Ireland as England, but I am concerned about what effect that will have on Australia. It means death for us, and because of that I call on you to arise and smite them hip and thigh."

When Archbishop Mannix said that the sentiments he uttered were supported by the bulk of the people of Australia, he said that which was not true.

"It has only one objective, and that is the destruction of the empire, or at any rate the founding of a republic of Ireland. I am not going to say that Ireland has no grievance, but I am irrevocably opposed to a republic of Ireland and will fight it tooth and nail by every means in my power, because it means the dismemberment of the empire and the dismemberment of the empire means the destruction of Australia.

"Mgr. Mannix says his one hope is that England and America will be at war, and that Ireland will fight England, and that America will fight England.

"If that hope is realized we will see a war the like of which the world has never seen. Hope for the peace of the world lies not in a League of Nations, but in that firm alliance of English-speaking and co-operative which has existed for over a hundred years between America and Britain and between the British Empire and America.

"If that hope is realized we will see a war the like of which the world has never seen. Hope for the peace of the world lies not in a League of Nations, but in that firm alliance of English-speaking and co-operative which has existed for over a hundred years between America and Britain and between the British Empire and America.

REPUDIATE MANNIX.

"If it were necessary to choose between the Kaiser and that man to which was the greater criminal, I know which one I would choose. The Australian people repudiate this Mgr. Mannix went of his own free will.

"The Australian people repudiate him. They want America to understand that Australia is part and parcel of the British empire and intends to remain there. Australia holds out the hand of friendship to peaceful America, but America must realize that America's destiny and our own coincide in the Pacific, and that America's aid there."

Fort Warren's First Baby "Gunproof"

Baby W. Horace, who is being held by his father, Ordnance Sergeant Horace Brooks, sleeps while the big guns roar.

Baby W. Horace Brooks, the first child to be born at Fort Warren, has been wakened, although sleeping under the roar of the cannon at the fort. He is master of the entrance section of the Northeastern Department.

Every one down at Fort Warren has fondled the soldier baby. They are beginning to do this at the North-east Department, where his father, Ordnance Sergeant Horace Brooks, has recently been assigned.

The soldier baby is just four and a half months' old and weighs fourteen pounds. It is a strong, healthy child, and the physicians at the army headquarters pronounced it to be a good specimen of soldier baby, the best they have seen around this section.

5 YEARS IN JAIL FOR ELOPER

Vermont Man Who Ran Away with Married Woman Pleads Guilty to Kidnaping

Bellows Falls, Vt., July 27.—Following a plea of guilty to a technical charge of kidnaping, James B. DeCamp, Cambridgeport, was sentenced in court to not less than five nor more than six years at hard labor in State Prison.

His arraignment and sentence follows a two months' hunt through northern New England for DeCamp, who, on June 1 left his home town together with Mrs. Edward L. McQuaide and her infant son, Donald. Since that time the pair and the child have been in Greenfield, Burlington and Quebec, where they were finally found by Deputy Sheriff George Alexander of Saxton's River.

State Attorney Ernest Gibson of Brattleboro, who assigned before Judge T. E. O'Brien claimed the pair had committed an offence against the Mann White Slave Act. Asserting that cases of this nature have been allowed to go common throughout this country, Attorney Gibson asked for a stiff sentence. Officials here state that Federal authorities may yet take a hand in the affair although DeCamp's sentence will postpone their dealing with him.

DeCamp boarded with H. L. McQuaide's brother-in-law and neighbor reported to McQuaide that DeCamp was friendly with his young wife. McQuaide ordered DeCamp from his home. Then, it is alleged, DeCamp and Mrs. McQuaide left town with the twenty-two months-old child.

MRS. PETTIBONE USED 'POISON'

Allston Witness Testifies Strychnine Was Taken as Headache Remedy

Manchester, Vt., July 27.—Through witnesses called today at the trial of Byron Madison Pettibone, the defence attempted to show that his wife, Eva Bond Pettibone, was not murdered, but died from an overdose of strychnine self-administered.

That she was in the habit of taking the drug to relieve headache was testified to by Mrs. Lillian Wray of No. 5 Idlewild street, Allston, Mass., who until two years ago assisted her husband in a Bennington chain grocery store of which he was manager.

To further substantiate its claim the defence called witnesses who testified that Mrs. Pettibone complained of feeling ill on the day previous to the night she drank the fatal dose.

Mrs. Wray took the stand after several Bennington people had testified that the prisoner was a "quiet, peaceful and inoffensive man."

According to Mrs. Wray's testimony Mrs. Pettibone came into the store on the morning of Armistice Day, November 11, 1918, just as she was about to close.

"I remember the incident very well," Mrs. Wray was told today. "I told Mrs. Pettibone that I was suffering from a severe headache and that I was going home to get something for it. She asked me what I took. I told her that I attributed it to a disordered stomach and that I generally took sweet spirits of niter and salts.

"I TAKE STRYCHNINE."

"What do you take for a headache? I asked her and she said, 'I found that salts weakened me very much and I came to the conclusion that my headaches were from something besides stomach trouble, and I have been taking something which acted on my heart because I became so weak after taking salts.'

"And I said: 'What do you take?' and she said: 'I take strychnine.'

"How do you dare fool with these things, do you not call a doctor every time you have a headache, most of us can't afford that, I said, and she answered: 'No, I can't afford a doctor, but let me know how sure I am to get it or where she got it. She left the place and walked as far as the street."

CONFESSION OF HEARSAY.

Q.—Did she tell you how she took the strychnine in these salts?

Witness—Yes. She said she couldn't swallow pills or tablets and she put it in a glass and crushed it with a spoon and put water and added water.

Q.—When did you know about this case? A.—Witness—A week ago yesterday.

Q.—Where did you read of it? Witness—In a Boston paper.

Mrs. Wray then stated that following the discovery of the news story she communicated with James K. Batchelder, chief counsel for the defendant, and was called as a witness.

Under cross-examination by Attorney General Archibald the witness testified that Mrs. Pettibone did not tell her how much strychnine she took in a dose, neither did she inform her where she obtained the drug.

Testimony that the poison victim complained of feeling ill recently before she died was given by Mrs. Ina Hollester, who worked in the same department of the Mrs. Pettibone at the Black Cat factory.

Mrs. Pettibone told me," she testified, "that she had a cold, that she was all tired out, and that her heart hurt her."

Mrs. Jennie Knights, an employe at the same factory, also testified that on the day the fatal dose was taken complained that "her spine hurt her; it hurt her to sit down; she had not been well for some days, and took several doses of medicine."

VICTIM'S NIECE WEEPS.

Mrs. Knights, who, admitted under cross-examination that despite her condition Mrs. Pettibone worked as usual that day.

Several of the witnesses, under list of a score or more to be called by the defence, testified to the good reputation that the accused man had in his home town.

Several of the witnesses, under cross-examination, stated that they did not know the difference between reputation and character, although one of them, Fred Stickles, for whom Pettibone worked at one time, admitted that "a man might have an excellent reputation and yet have the vilest of characters."

The Rev. W. G. Towart, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Bennington, stated that although he had never heard the prisoner's reputation mentioned he knew his wife's excellent. He was one of the witnesses who stated that reputation and character were the same thing.

FLAMES DESTROY 5 COTTAGES

Fought by Bucket Brigades After Haverhill Engine Is Ditched Going to Colony

Newton, N. H., July 27.—The Summer colony at Wilder's Grove, Country Pond, were thrown into a frenzy of excitement when fire broke out in the grocery store of Ned Holmes and, fanned by a strong wind, sent the flames streaming over several cottages.

The entire colony, including some forty cottages, was threatened. There is no fire department at the pond and the cottagers formed bucket brigades and tried to save their property.

Word was telephoned to Haverhill and a combination of the fire department with firemen were sent to the scene. The machine got stalled in a ditch in Plaistow, N. H., and could not reach the fire.

By strenuous efforts men, women and children succeeded in checking the fire, but not until it had destroyed the store and cottage owned by Holmes, burned two cottages owned by Charles Ford, cottages owned by Fred W. Mears, president of the Haverhill Chamber of Commerce; Dominick W. Kenny and Norris Pilling of Haverhill, Mass.

ORDERS ARREST OF VETERANS

Jail or Fine for Delinquent Legionaires Who Owe Dues and Wear Insignia

Veterans of the world war wearing the insignia of the American Legion and who as members of the organization cannot produce a paid-up membership card are subject to arrest.

Warning is also issued by the organization that young women wearing Legion pins or buttons, the gift of their fiance or war veteran friends, will also be prosecuted, as many young women who served during the war are affiliated with the Legion and rightfully entitled to wear the insignia.

Under the law, all these will be arrested, subject either to a $20 fine or imprisonment for thirty days, or both. Post commanders have been notified by Adjutant Spillane in a special letter, that all bona fide members will act as voluntary police in rounding up those who are not entitled to wear the emblem of the Legion.

Department Commander Colonel Edward L. Logan has sent a circular broadcast to all post officers and police officials which reads in part:

"I desire to call your particular attention to the enclosed copy of a law which has been passed by the State Legislature. This law means that any person willfully and unlawfully wearing the American Legion insignia, in the form of a button or otherwise, for the purpose of representing that he is a member of that organization, is subject to arrest and punishment by a fine or imprisonment or both."

MANCHESTER GETS BIG CORPORATION TAXES

Manchester, N. H., July 27.—The Amoskeag Manufacturing Co. will pay the city in taxes this year $555,489.09 on a valuation of $20,000,000. The taxes paid last year amounted to $498,735.32. The International Cotton Co. will pay $49,353.47 on a valuation of $2,711,740. The W. H. McElwain Co. pays $28,461.82. Its valuation being fixed at $1,563,837. The Manchester Traction, Light & Power Co. is also among the heavy taxpayers, its bill for 1920 being $67,421. The valuation being $3,153,000. The People's Gas Light Co. will pay $29,129 into the city treasurer, the valuation of its holdings being placed at $1,600,000.

Tufts Seeks Creation of Auto Theft Bureau

District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex County today announced that he intended to file with the Massachusetts Legislature a bill calling for the establishment of a State bureau to keep track of all data pertaining to automobile accidents and other crimes, and to have attached to the bureau inspectors whose duty it will work with the district attorney in the fourteen counties in the Commonwealth.

The proposed measure was suggested by the discoveries made by District Attorney Tufts and his first assistant, George Stanley Harvey, in the course of investigations into the auto theft cases which resulted in their securing 156 indictments and from their general experience as public prosecutors.

BAILEY WELL AHEAD IN TEXAS PRIMARY

Dallas, Tex., July 27.—Latest returns from the Democratic primary election of Saturday failed to alter the lead of former United States Senator Joseph W. Bailey. With two thirds of the tabulations completed the contest stood: Bailey, 117,671; P. M. Neff, 114,088; Robert E. Thomason, 79,031; Ben. F. Looney, 58,913.

MOONSHINE FOUND IN HOTEL AT FALL RIVER

Fall River, July 27.—During a flying visit which they paid to this city, federal officers created a sensation by visiting the McKinley Hotel, next to the Fall River depot. They confiscated about five gallons of moonshine and took into custody Charles Connors, one of the proprietors of the place. They then found a still in a tenement on Manchester street, but the owner was absent. Acting on information given by South Main street the officers found a couple of quarts of liquor.

FIANCEE SHIFTS LOVES AT SEA

Falls in Love with Steward, Now Spurns Boston Man She Came Over to Wed

With the arrival here of the big liner Winifredian came the details of a shattered war romance involving a Boston youth and a pretty English lass.

Alice Gertrude Chase, aged nineteen, of No. 22 Fielding street, Kensington, Liverpool, left her native home intent on marrying Anthony Trifiro of No. 2 Davis street, South End. But on the trip over she changed her mind and for that reason is now held by the immigration authorities.

Her refusal to carry out her agreement may mean that she will be deported. According to passengers on the liner the near-bride gave little regarding the decision of the authorities. They say that she met the assistant steward on the ship and that she intends to marry him.

Miss Chase admitted that Trifiro sent her the money with which to defray her passage and to purchase her trousseau.

They met while Trifiro was in Liverpool as a member of the crew of an American naval vessel. He sailed for the United States a week later. During the year that has elapsed since their meeting their correspondence led to their engagement.

PAYMASTER IS SHOT; BANDITS GET $10,000

Chicago, July 27.—Five automobile bandits shot and perhaps fatally wounded George Hasbrouck, a clothing house paymaster here, and escaped with $10,000. Two of the men are said to have been shot and wounded in a battle with the police. All five, however, escaped.

War Brides Seem to Be Repenting

Are war brides tiring of hero husbands?

This is the question the sociologists are asking while keeping an eye on the Suffolk County Superior Court divorce dockets where startling figures are arousing attention.

Whether it is war brides or hero husbands there is one ray of light and hope. Although the divorce figures are swelled to balloon size, the marriage licenses have likewise registered at high and are keeping fair pace.

Here they are: Marriage licenses issued in Boston for 1915 were 10,757; for 1916, 10,124; for 1917, 11,175; for 1918, 8,776; for 1919, 9,243.

For divorces the largest number ever recorded for a year in the Superior Court was in 1919, which the high water figure of 1,799 was reached.

Then, for the first six months of 1920, 928 suits were entered.

By far the greater number of divorces are granted to women, and far the greater number of these are for desertion. So it would seem that if the war has entered into the scheme of marriage and divorce, the hero of the war is not doing his share of matrimonial duty.

During the past year there were 626 cases where desertion was made the ground for severing matrimonial relations. Of this number 561 decrees were granted. Cruel and abusive treatment follows next on the list, 178 in number; there were 141 cases. Neglect, intoxication and unfaithfulness follow in succession.

The figures on divorce were compiled today by Francis A. Campbell, clerk of the Suffolk Court, to be transmitted to the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

The Superior Court acquired jurisdiction over divorce in 1887. In that year the docket contained 216 suits of divorce. A steady increase has been maintained.

The banner month for filing divorce suits was March of this year, when 213 were placed upon the docket.

BOSTON DEATH RATE LOWEST SINCE 1896

Boston is becoming a healthier city to live in. Despite the record heat and humidity, the number of deaths in the week just closed totaled only 136, according to the records on file at the Board of Health. This is the lowest record since 1896.

Forty-two of those who died were over sixty years of age and fifty-six were children under five years of age, according to the health board statisticians. Incidentally, it is stated that the number of deaths from typhoid fever in Boston have dropped amazingly.

Claims Human Mind Is Not in the Brain

By International News Service.

Paris, July 27.—The most revolutionary medical discovery of modern times was announced in today's issue of "The Scientific Review" by Professor Troude, who claims that the brain is not the seat of mental activity, as has long been supposed.

From experiments made during and since the war by eminent surgeons, it is believed by the investigating physicians that the human mind is seated in some part of the body other than the brain and possibly in the trunk, Professor Troude says.

Professor Troude refused to make public the names of the doctors from whom he had gathered his data, explaining that they did not wish to appear in public in connection with such a startling theory.

"They have furnished me with the full facts, citing war-time operations where all parts of the brain were removed without impairing the mental faculties," said Professor Troude. "Further experiments are now being made on dogs and monkeys to get absolute confirmation of the theory."

REBUFFED, SUITOR FIRES THROUGH DOOR

After making love to Mrs. Annie Giordno through the door of her home on Pearl street and failing in his plea to be allowed to enter, an unidentified man fired two shots through the door and fled. He was sought by Chelsea police today. According to Mrs. Giordno, the man said he was a police inspector. The same man made a similar attempt to get into the Giordno house a week ago, saying he was the landlord. Mrs. Giordno is an attractive young matron. Her persecutor is middle aged.

KIDNAPED GIRL PICTURES HOUSE

Disclosures by Florence Rush Result in Police Sending Investigator to Providence

Florence Rush, the East Boston girl, kidnaped by six men in an automobile and taken to Providence, R. I., gave a description of the house in which she was held prisoner when examined by Joseph Dunninger, the New York mental expert.

Revere and East Boston police officers also questioned the girl, after Dunninger's examination, and she repeated to them substantially what she had told the psychologist.

Revere officers have gone to Providence today in connection with her disclosures to the mental expert. She told Dunninger that the house in which she was held captive was painted yellow, with green trimmings, is near the water, but hidden by trees. There is a piazza on three sides of the house, with a flight of steps at one corner.

The girl also changed her story regarding her return, stating that she was driven from the house to the depot in Providence by a woman. The automobile was a large closed machine.

She now claims that when she regained consciousness after eating the piece of cake given her by one of the six men she found herself in this closed machine. The auto was kept in the road near the house, she claims, not being taken to any garage.

She told the authorities that the six men did not invite her and her girl companion to ride, but that she and her chum asked the men for a ride. The men refused, but later consented and took them in.

TWO PAY FINES FOR MILK BELOW STANDARD

Louis W. Contos, who conducts a restaurant at No. 14½ Fish Pier, and George D. Trestilis, who runs the Columbia Cafe at No. 117 Dorchester avenue, South Boston, were fined $15 each in South Boston Court today for having milk and cream below the standard.

New Yorker Is Robbed in Cafe at Paris

By International News Service.

Paris, July 27.—The theft of 27,000 francs from an American giving the name of John Watson of New York, during a gay cabaret party, was revealed today by the arrest of a woman and two men. According to the police Watson was robbed by a woman he met in a cafe. She gave the money to her sweetheart, who purchased an automobile with it. The automobile was stolen and the owner, accompanied by his woman friend, went to the police prefecture to complain. The police recognized the woman from the description left by the American and she was arrested. Subsequently the two men were arrested.

$1,250,000 Offer for Palace Refused

London, July 27.—An offer by a moving picture syndicate to purchase Marlborough house for $1,250,000 has been refused by King George following objections from the Prince of Wales, who desireed it was impossible to obtain another such suitable town house.

The Queen-Dowager Alexandra, who is now living in Marlborough house, had agreed to the sale and declared herself ready to live in Sandringham, but the Prince, who is to inherit Marlborough House after Alexandra's death, objected.

BAR TO FAMILIES SEEN AS MENACE

Nichols of Rent Board to Ask Law Punishing Landlords Who Ban Children

Terming the action of certain landlords in barring families with children from their apartments as "a menace to public health and morals," Chairman Malcolm E. Nichols of the city rent and housing committee declared he would ask to have a law placed on the statutes that would punish such men when the Legislature meets in special session next Fall.

"I will personally go before the special session of the Legislature and ask for the passage of a statute which will place a severe penalty upon any landlord who refuses to rent an apartment or house to families with children," he said.

"Such action is a menace to public health and morals. At present we have very little power and the only thing we can do is to appeal to the sense of decency in a landlord."

Chairman Nichols declared that the greatest number of complaints heard by the committee come from mothers who cannot get homes because of their children.

"Landlords must come to a realization of the fact that they cannot bar families with children," Mr. Nichols stated. "With the housing situation as acute as it is, children must be treated fairly."

Physician Explains Why He Prescribes Nuxated Iron for Run-Down, Anaemic People

Says It Quickly Increases the Strength and Energy of Men and Brings Roses to the Cheeks of Nervous, Run-down Women

Ask the first hundred strong, healthy looking people you meet to what they owe their strength and energy and see how many reply "Nuxated Iron." Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Out-door Dept.), of New York and the Westchester County Hospital says: "Thousands of nervous, run-down, anaemic people suffer from iron deficiency but do not know what to take. There is nothing like organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to quickly enrich the blood, and thereby put roses in the cheeks of women and give men increased strength and energy.

Unlike the older forms of iron, Nuxated Iron does not injure the teeth nor upset the stomach, but is readily assimilated and you can quickly recognize its action by a renewed feeling of buoyant health.

No matter what other iron remedies you have used without success if you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test:

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. To be absolutely sure of getting real organic iron and not some form of the metallic variety always ask for Nuxated Iron in its original packages. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength, power and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time in many instances.

Over Four Million People Annually Are Taking Nuxated Iron

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Each tablet of genuine Nuxated Iron is stamped with the letter N and the words Nuxated Iron are stamped into each bottle. Insist on this the public may not be induced to accept inferior substitutes. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists in tablet form only.

DIAMONDS at Lowest Prices

It has always been our policy during our 81 years in business to give our customers the greatest diamond values in Boston. Our prices are always the lowest, quality considered.

Solitaire Diamond Engagement Rings

$50 up to $500

Fine blue white, perfectly cut, exceptionally brilliant diamonds. Platinum and Gold Tiffany Style Settings. We advise immediate purchase as prices of diamonds are sure to be much higher.

Gentlemen's Diamond Rings

$75 up to $1000

Brilliant, snappy, fine color diamonds mounted in the new style heavy 14k gold rings for men. Some very unusual bargains in diamonds that we have taken in exchange and bought at private parties.

Our stock of Waltham, Elgin and Hamilton Watches this season is the largest we have ever offered.

WE TAKE STOCK FRIDAY, JULY 30!

White's Semi-Annual Before-Stocktaking Clearance

Sale Starts Wednesday Morning and Continues Thursday and Friday If Lots Hold Out

A store-wide reduction and clearance sale of Odd Lots, Remnants, Single Pieces, Discontinued Styles, and all accumulated and shop worn merchandise. Some departments have many lots, others have few, but all lots must be closed out.

We expect most of this merchandise to be sold the first day—and much of it early, as there is always a big demand for these half-yearly clearance lots. But such lots as do not sell out on the first day will be continued on sale Thursday and Friday. Mail Orders will be filled—if merchandise is not sold when orders are received—but usually lots are gone by the time letters arrive.

All Sales Final. No Exchanges. None Sent C. O. D.

THE DEAF HEAR

"I gave up my work because I could not hear," said Thos. Hinnant of 5 Tyler st, Boston. "I am a counterman in a restaurant, he noticed my hand when I could not hear the orders I told the boss that there was no use of me trying to work there, so I quit. A painter employed at the same place told me of the Cosmo-Chemic Physicians and how they had helped his wife, whom he said suffered much as I did. There was a singing noise in my ear like escaping steam. The trouble was mostly in my left ear. I had the Cosmo-Chemic Physicians treat me and I can now hear again. Have taken up my work again and the noises have gone."

The wonderful power of the X-RAY TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonderful results in cases of DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, CATARRH, STOMACH DISEASES, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASE, BIRTH-MARK, MOLES, FACIAL BLEMISHES, ETC.

MILL CITY MAYOR TO ACT ALONE

Lawrence Aldermen Reported to Have Lost Interest in Wood Conference Project

Lawrence, July 27.—Mayor William P. White stated today that he does not wish to injure the American Woolen Company or its president, "but unless Mr. Wood agrees to confer with me immediately, I have the proof which will force him to do so."

The aldermen have apparently lost interest in the situation and would not discuss it with the mayor. White stated that hereafter he would act alone.

Before an audience of several hundred workers on a vacant lot at Chestnut and Short streets, Ben Legere, an organizer for the Amalgamated Textile Workers, told the workers in the mills to prepare to slow down in production when the mills reopen. A strike was hinted at by the speaker with shorter hours as the objective.

"I believe that it is the definite plan of the American Woolen Co. to close down its mills for about two months every year," declared the speaker. He stated that the strike of last year prevented the mills from carrying out their plans in this regard.

Legere's audience, mostly foreign speaking people, applauded frequently. The attitude of Mayor White in regard to the permit to hold a meeting on the Common which was disallowed was criticised.

Ponzi Is Sued For A Million

Joseph Daniels, who says he loaned Charles Ponzi $200 to start the Securities Exchange Company, is now seeking in a bill in equity filed in the Superior Court to have Ponzi ordered to pay him $1,000,000 of the profits made since the enterprise assumed shape.

Daniels claims that at the time he gave Ponzi the money it was understood that each should share equally in the profits of the concern.

Ponzi admits receiving the $200 from Daniels, but denies that he agreed to give him a share of the earnings of the company. The claim made by Daniels is without foundation, according to Ponzi.

Daniels has attached funds deposited by Ponzi in several national banks and trust companies in Boston.

On motion of Hill, Barlow & Homans, counsel for Ponzi, Judge Wait of the Superior Court has sent the case to a master who is instructed to determine first whether such an agreement as Daniels relies upon was made.

THRONGS VISIT PONZI'S OFFICE

Men, Women and Children Assemble to Collect on Notes; Business Suspended

Charles Ponzi, head of the Securities Exchange Company, No. 27 School street, went into temporary eclipse today as a result of a suggestion made by District Attorney Pelletier.

In accordance with an agreement with the district attorney, Ponzi's office was open only for payments on notes and no funds were received, pending the report of an auditor who is to go over the books of the company.

Similar conditions obtained in branch offices throughout New England, and while the district attorney stated that this was in no sense a final closing down, it was understood that the newblown financier would not resume.

In the meantime, men, women and children thronged the street in front of the building housing the Securities Exchange Company, struggling to obtain entrance and collect on notes matured, or else get back their principle on notes unsecured. This followed the publication of a paid advertisement, signed by Ponzi, in which he declared that he would meet all his obligations.

The conference with District Attorney Pelletier resulting in the suspension of business by Ponzi, was one of many which he held with various constituted authorities of State and Nation in an effort to convince them that his proposition was legal.

The man claims that he has made more than $8,000,000 for himself and millions more for clients, through the purchase of international reply coupons. The man promised to pay 50 per cent in ninety days on all money loaned him for investment, and is said to have cut the time in half.

Relative of Cardinal O'Connell Is Killed

Seumas Naoregain, a relative of Cardinal O'Connell, was one of the Irish Republican leaders killed in the recent fighting in Belfast. Word was received today that the funeral had been held at Old-Castle, Meath, and was turned into a vast patriotic demonstration by the Sinn Feiners.

Naoregain was a commandant of Irish volunteers and an official of the volunteer police. He was shot by the military while acting as police official during the riotings in the Ormond city.

Twenty-five thousand Republican sympathizers turned out for the funeral and marched sixteen Irish miles from the Kells Church to the cemetery.

TRANSFERS OF REALTY DELAY TAX RATE

Because of an unusual number of real estate transfers between January 1 and April 1, said to be due to rent profiteering, work of computing the new tax rate has been delayed. City assessing department officials estimate that 7,000 estates changed hands.

SEES "L" OWNED BY PUBLIC

Trustee Stevens Forecasts Overturn at Hearing Before City Council

A prediction that public ownership of the Boston Elevated would succeed public control at the end of its ten years tenure was made by John P. Stevens, one of the Elevated trustees, in a hearing before the City Council. He declared he favored public ownership of the road.

The forecast was made when President James T. Moriarty of the Council renewed, from the previous meeting, his criticism of the expenditures being made by the road.

Trustee Stevens replied that the expenditures were being made with a view to giving better service and that it would all redound to the benefit of the public.

"I think the public is going to own this road," he said. "It will never go back to the stockholders. As one of the trustees I favor public ownership of the Boston Elevated."

Moriarty declared that his objection to the expenditure of large sums of money was based upon the fact that the public would have to pay for them twice, at present and when the road is taken over by public ownership.

LONG PUTT SETTLES MATCH

Americans Led Britishers by Three Holes at One Time During Match

New London, July 27.—In golf that bordered on the sensational and what was possibly the greatest football match ever played in this country, Vardon and Ray defeated Barnes and Hagen on the last green of a thirty-six hole play. Vardon was responsible for the victory on the home hole as he sank a twenty-five foot putt for a birdie three and saw Hagen miss a five-footer for a half.

It was a day of brilliant golf the like of which is seldom seen and it was fully appreciated by the large gallery who turned out on the Spencer-Chesebrough links to watch the play. Never until the last hole did the Englishmen have a lead. It was always the American combination that had the advantage, gained on the second hole in the first round and increased to three up at one stage in the second round, then finally settling down to an even fight in the home stretch. It was Ray that carried the burden for his side in the first round without his veteran partner helping on a hole but the latter more than made up for his mistakes by settling the match in the second round.

FOUGHT TO STANDSTILL.

Hagen appeared all during the latter part of the play as if he was about ready to do something to help Long Jim out, but he never did it. Time after time he had chances to win a hole with what looked to be a fairly easy putt, but the ball always managed to escape the cup somehow.

Big Ted Ray with his terrific long driving and almost equally long putting fought the home players to a standstill in the first round, but he could not quite hold them in check and Barnes broke through the barricade and won the last two holes, giving his side a lead of two holes at lunch time.

It looked like a cinch after four holes had been played in the second round, as Hagen's three at the fourth put his side another hole to the good, but on the three succeeding holes Vardon suddenly awakened and won all three of them and squared the match. Barnes got a birdie three then at the eighth and took the lead again, but Ray's four at the ninth put the match all square again.

MAGNIFICENT BATTLE.

It was a magnificent battle then all the way to the eighteenth green without either side caving in. It looked as if the Americans would surely be one up at the sixteenth as Barns laid his long approach dead to the hole but Ray sank a twenty-five footer for a three and the match continued all square. Again on the last green the home talent appeared to have the best of it but Vardon unexpectedly ran down his putt from the edge of the green and Hagen failed in an attempt to put down one of scarcely six feet.

It was a day of long putting. At times Ray's efforts in this direction were uncanny. He was always putting the hole and succeeded in finding it too many times to suit the opposition and the large gallery too who, while fair enough, naturally wanted to see our boys win. All four players picked up many times.

Hagen-O'Hara Paired in Mets Open Tourney

New York, July 27.—Entries for the Metropolitan golf championship, which starts tomorrow at the Greenwich Country Club, forecast the liveliest struggle in the history of that fixture, in numbers, territory represented and class, the list of 108 names received establishes new marks. Walter Hagen will defend his title, with James M. Barnes, as usual, at his elbow.

The amateur contingent will come principally from Greenwich, including Reggie Lewis, Henry Topping and Charles Van Vleck, Jr., but Jess Sweetser, intercollegiate champion, will attract much attention, also L. D. Armour, the Scotchman, lately arrived on this side.

BRAVES BATTLE CUBS TODAY

Watson and Alexander in Mound Duel; Double Bill Is Listed Tomorrow

The Braves ushered in a rather busy week of baseball at the Home of Big Things with a single battle with the Chicago Cubs today. Two games are listed with Fred Mitchell's hirelings on the morrow and thereafter there will be only one game a day until the arrival of the Pirates Saturday, when a bargain program will be once more in order.

The Tribe returns in seventh place, chiefly because of the weak showing that was made in Pittsburgh and Chicago while on the Western trip. In the first-named city the Braves were shut out without a victory, while one was all they could grab off in the Illinois metropolis. They got an even break in Redland and took three out of five in St. Louis.

Now that his team is at home Rogs Snallings has begun grooming them for a drive on the first division and as a propitious beginning shot Rookie Watson into the box. It looked like Alex the Great for the Fredmitchells.

INVITE GOLFERS TO KERNWOOD TOURNAMENT

Invitations are out for the Kernwood Country Club tournament, August 26 and 27. This tournament will be a little different from the rest this year in that it will consist of seventy-two holes medal play. The course lies in Salem and is a real test of the game. Jesse Kashland, who is looking after the details, is going to have one of the classiest fields that can be assembled.

FIRST SOCCER GAME TO BE PLAYED SEPTEMBER 4

A decision to open the season September 4 was reached at a meeting of the Boston and District Soccer League, held at No. 724 Washington street. Delegates from the Fore River B., Maple Leafs, Lynn Hibernian, Boston Rovers and Swedish-American teams were present.

REDS BEAT INDIANS IN EXHIBITION CONTEST

RED SOX ON WAY TO CLEVELAND

Open Series with Indians Tomorrow; Hand Fine Lacing to Yanks; Jones in Box

The Red Sox are en route to Cleveland today, where they open tomorrow with the Indians. As a parting momento Barrow's clan handed the Yankees a fine lacing, 5 to 0, on the Polo Grounds, 8am Jones was in excellent form allowing Babe Ruth and company but three hits. The erstwhile ferocious "Murderers' Row" was completely tamed by the Red Sox righthander, who had an excellent assortment of curves and fast ones and mixed these with rare judgment. His teammates in the meantime worked havoc with the offerings of a whole flock of Yankee hurlers, beginning with "Bug" Collins, widely heralded as the pitching find of the season, and ending with Robert McGraw, not so widely heralded but just about as easy.

NILES MEETS RICE IN FINALS AT LONGWOOD

Nathaniel W. Niles and Lawrence Rice were scheduled to meet in the final round of the Longwood Bowl singles to determine who was to challenge National Champion William M. Saskatoon, Sask., July 27.—The four United States army airplanes en route from Mineola, N. Y., to Nome, Alaska, landed safely here after a flight from Portal, N. D. The expedition left here today for Edmonton. The commanding officer reported the actual flying time from New York was fifteen hours.

Sanardo Springs Surprise

Columbus, O., July 27.—Sanardo, driven by Murphy, furnished the big surprise on the first day of Grand Circuit racing here, by defeating Single G. in the free-for-all pace. Single G. took the first heat but lost the next two to the Boston-owned gelding. The manner in which Single G. was driven caused considerable unfavorable comment, but no action was taken by the judges.

DEMPSEY DOPED WILLS TO WIN

Champion Not Surprised at Way Negro Boxer Handled Giant Plasterer

By JACK DEMPSEY,
World's Heavyweight Champion.

Newark, July 27.—When Harry Wills, the perfectly trained regular heavyweight, sent his last vicious rip into Fred Fulton's stomach and then mercifully permitted his gigantic opponent to slip to the floor, an amazed silence wrapped the huge crowd.

But there were two men at the ringside who were not surprised at the dramatic outcome. One of them was Jack Kearns, my friend and manager. The other was myself.

You see I have fought this same Fulton. I knew that any first-class fighting man who went at him ferociously and forced snappy battling at close quarters would get Fulton and get him without much difficulty.

I pursued the "panther" tactics in my fight with Fulton. The result of my experience with Fulton in that fight convinced me that Wills would win.

Bout with Wills Up to Kearns

After the knockout scores of men crowded around my ringside seat. These questions seemed to be on everyone's lips:

"What do you think of Wills?"

"Are you going to erase the color line and fight him?"

My answer to the first question was that I thought Wills one of the best heavyweights in the world. I do think so. But whether he is entitled to an immediate chance at the heavyweight crown is a question that will be left to my manager.

I have been eager to fight Carpentier and Mr. Kearns and others tell me that the public demand that I fight Carpentier.

Carpentier certainly has a record that entitles him to respect, and no one will be prouder than myself to take part in an international contest for the world's championship.

Martin Kayos Smith

For Latest and Best News of the Olympics Read Parker's Articles

Charles E. Parker, the Boston American's track and field expert, is today on the high seas bound for Antwerp with the American Olympic team. He will give an expert account of the happenings at the world's greatest athletic meeting.

The name of Charles E. Parker is listed high among the sporting authorities of this country. He named virtually all of the point winners of the Intercollegiate track meet. Two days prior to the Olympic tests at the Stadium, Parker named the probable winners. Four-fifths of the men named by Parker won places on the American Olympic team.

Parker will also write human interest stories of the American athletes who are making the overseas trip. Our own New England boys, of course, will receive first consideration.

Even if you are not versed in the fine points of track sports, you will enjoy Parker's articles. They are so cleverly and carefully written they make light, easy reading. They contain everything that one desires in an expert's articles, and at the same time have that light, human interest touch that makes them readable and enjoyable to those persons who have not followed track sports closely.

DEPARTMENT STORE LEAGUE NEWS AND NOTES

Two games are on the schedule for tonight at North Brighton Playground. R. H. White meets C. F. Hovey's nine and Shepard and Butler will also cross bats.

Hovey's and White's met once before this season, the former being victorious. In that game, however, two players who were not eligible were in the lineup of the Hovey team, so the game was ordered to be played over.

The White-Hovey game is expected to be a pitchers' battle between Jim McDonald and Jack O'Callahan. Both pitchers are going along in great shape.

Although the R. H. White team did not play the game scheduled with Roberts Post at the All-Dorchester Post Carnival at Combination Park last Saturday, it was well represented in the sporting events. Jim McDonald and Bill Malley, both members of the ball team, competed in the mile run and took away second and third prizes. McDonald finished second.

Joe Hatton, of Shepards has been turning in some fine work behind the bat. His throwing, blocking off at the plate and receiving have been the cause of much favorable comment. His work with the willow has also been better than average.

Tip O'Neil, of Hovey's, is playing the same brand of ball that his namesake, the former St. Louis Browns player, used to show in left field for the big leagues.

Arrangements are being made to secure Soldiers Field or Tufts Oval for the rest of the league games. The present field at North Brighton is not as good as desired and it is hoped that the games next week can be played at one of these new fields.

Negotiations are under way to secure the service of Jack Stafford as umpire.

Gene Hickey, Chet Curnane and John Dawson of the Talbot team are on their vacations. All three, however, have promised to be on hand for all the games.

John Drewham of Hovey's has been batting in great shape during the past few games. He changed style seems to be working to advantage.

Brassard Race at Revere Tomorrow

The first brassard of the season will be staged at the Revere cycle track tomorrow night.

The brassard is the real classic of the bike racing season, and carries with a rich prize as well as a daily bonus of $10 to the winner until he is defeated in a similar event.

Manager Butler has named Chapman, Lawrence, Wiley and Madonna as starters and over the one hour route the fans are in for a banner night of racing.

The heats in the N. E. professional sprints will be run off also tomorrow night.

The regular card of amateur and professional events will complete the program.

Goodyear Mileage—and Tires for Small Cars

A well built tire yields much more mileage for each dollar of cost than a tire purposely made to be offered at a sensationally low price; buy the tire, not the price.

Built to deliver exceptional mileage at exceedingly low cost, Goodyear Tires, of the 30x3-, 30x3½- and 31x4-inch sizes, save inconvenience, disappointment and money.

Their value results from the application of Goodyear experience, expertness and care to their manufacture in the world's largest tire factory devoted to these sizes.

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or other car taking these sizes, go to your nearest Service Station for Goodyear Tires—for the real worth and endurance that Goodyear builds into them.

Watch for This Story in Motion Pictures

"The World and His Wife," soon to be seen in motion pictures at the best theatres, is a Cosmopolitan production released as a Paramount-Artcraft picture from the play by Charles Frederic Nirdlinger, founded on the dramatic verse of Jose Echegaray.

THE STORY TO DATE

In romantic Seville Don Julian Gorgas, an influential man past the flush of youth, falls in love with Teodora, a beautiful orphan, who reciprocates his affection. Don Julian promises an aged friend that he will look out for his son, Ernesto, a dreamy young poet. The father dies and Julian marries Teodora. Later Ernesto comes to live in Julian's home, and she goes about with him at Don Julian's request, thereby furnishing a chance for gossip and giving Don Alvarez, a rival of Julian's for diplomatic honors, an opportunity to make slurring remarks. Don Severo, Julian's brother in Madrid, hears the reports and decides to warn the husband.

Screen Version Novelized.

By Jane McLean

TO THE pleading of Severo Mercedes added her own, tinctured with more bitterness, since she already was jealous of the bride's beauty. To her likewise Julian turned a deaf ear. "What you say, my dear sister, is the result of much brooding over imaginary situations—these situations do not really exist, therefore why treat them as real?"

"If they seem to exist it is enough for the world; it is high time to stop them."

"Yes, if one depends on what the world says."

"But you, my dear Julian, you do depend on what it says and on what it thinks; this gossip will have an evil effect on your chances to win the post you have set your heart on."

"Do you think it has gone so far as that, these malicious lies?"

"My dear Julian, only this morning I heard your own butler remark that it isn't wise to cast age with youth."

A frown appeared on the placid countenance of the man. "You heard that?"

"I heard that and more," said Mercedes, making the most of the impression she was creating; "they are in the studio now—hear them laughing. Do you think in your blindness that you can throw two attractive young people together day after day with no bad result? If you do, how little you know human nature."

Don Julian rose. "Enough of this, Mercedes," he said, sternly. "I'll think over what you, and Severo have said."

"For your own sake, Julian." She walked away, leaving him hear the voices from the studio. He stood for a moment uncertain and then with a sudden start tiptoed toward the entrance and looked in. Teodora was modelling on a bust of the poet, Ernesto was sitting near an open book on his knee. The girl-wife turned now and again and made some smiling remark, where the laughed.

A Picture of Content

They presented a picture of perfect contentment. A thrust like a knife shot through the heart of Don Julian. Were his brother and Mercedes right? Was he playing with fire to allow these two to see so much of each other?

He advanced, making his presence known by a heavier tread. Teodora seeing him, ran to his side and, throwing an arm about his waist, came forward with him.

"How do you like my modelling, Julian?" she asked, pointing toward the bust.

The husband looked down at her upraised eyes. He saw in them only faith, love, trust. "It is good," he managed to say calmly. "In time you will become a master."

"As long as you love me I shall become what you want me to become," she cried.

"There's hope for me, too," said Ernesto, his glance showing that his heart was wholly devoted to his patron. "Who knows, in time, I may be a Calderon."

From this scene Julian returned to his library at peace with himself, and yet as he started to work again the words of his brother came floating into his mind. He shook his head impatiently; he was above paying attention to such slanders and yet—

Tossed Paper Aside

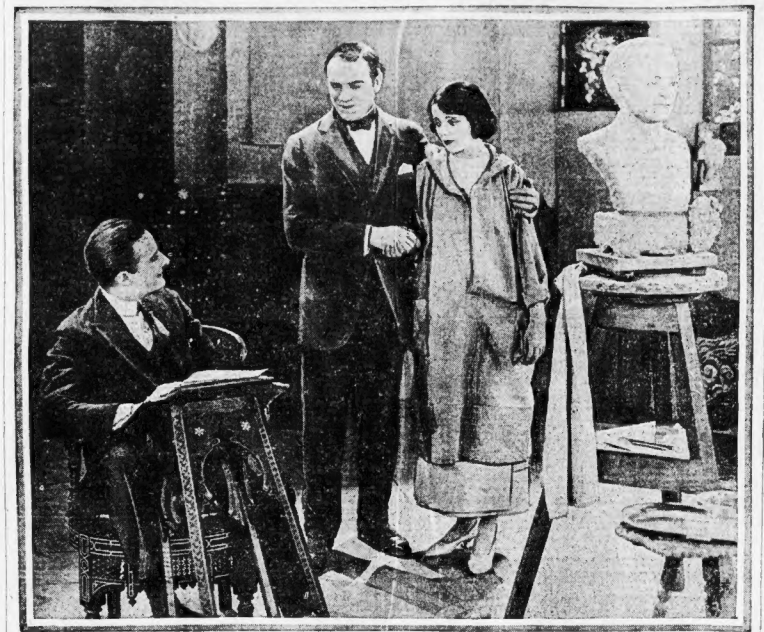
He tossed down a paper and sought out Severo. The latter was talking with Captain Wickersham. "Come along," said Don Julian, "I have a notion to treat the captain to a tamale, Spanish style. What do you say? Shall we go to the Granada?"

If Severo saw in the proposed visit to the restaurant anything more than appeared on the surface he did not hesitate; he knew well that at this hour Alvarez would be there and that anything might happen or nothing.

The three men drove down chatting and sat not far from the gossiping dandy and his cronies.

The presence of Don Julian seemed to act as a prod to his rival. His banter increased and his sallies called forth the loud approval of his friends.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.



A scene from "The World and His Wife," in which Teodora (Alma Rubens) and the young poet, Ernesto, dispel by their frankness the suspicions planted in the heart of Don Julian, Teodora's husband.

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Smith

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

SMITH

VARIATIONS — Smyth, Smythe; Schmidt; Faber, Lefevre, Favre, Faure.

RACIAL ORIGIN — Anglo-Saxon, old German and old French.

SOURCE — An occupation; also geographical.

THERE was a president of France, not so many years ago, whose name was often in American newspapers and is known to virtually everybody. His name was Felix Faure. You wouldn't think that was the same as Felix Smith —but it is.

Smith is the most widespread family name in the world, barnone. The name of Smith, in its various forms and compounds, not to mention various tongues, occurs thousands of times to a single instance of any other surname, with the sole exception of Jones; but even the Jones of the world could not hope to poll more than a weak minority vote against the Smiths.

It would be futile to try to tell everything about the Smith names in an article of this size, but just to lay out the ground for future discussions, of its various forms, this much may be pointed out:

A smith, in medieval times, was a worker in metal, and the various forms of metal working constituted the largest and most profitable industry of the middle ages, throughout Europe.

Smith, Smythe and Smyth come down to us from the old Anglo-Saxon tongue. The word means, specically, one who smites, the name being derived from the same root as the verb "to smite." Smythe and Smyth are closer to the original spelling than Smith. Old spellings are "Smethe," "Smeyt," "Smyth" and "Smyt."

Schmidt is the German name; Lefevre (la Fevre), Fabre and Faure are French forms developed from the Latin word for smith, "faber," which also comes down through English from Norman-French days.

Smith, in a few cases, also comes from the medieval English "smeeth," meaning a plain, or field.

"The history of the name and race of Smith, even in America, has yet to be written," records the genealogist. "It would be a gigantic task." However, the story of the first Smith on record is quaint and one that will last, so long as history is read and written.

It is the story of Captain John Smith. In the early history of Massachusetts, while yet the very first explorers were coming here, we learned, as children, about the gallant adventurer, Captain John; of how he displeased the Indian chief, who had him all tied up, ready for the tomahawk. Then we learned of that early romance of long ago: how Pocahontas, Indian princess, looked upon the white man, and pitied, and loved him, and made her father, the old chief, save his life. Then the princess married the captain. It is said that children of these earliest Smiths were born and handed down the name, but the genealogists can prove nothing.

Tomorrow—O'Leary.

When Hearts Are Trumps

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XXXIX.

THE flush that had come to Barbara's face as she talked to Mary Jameson of Robert Elliot, lingered there during the ensuing conversation. Only once did she show signs of the softness that was so much a part of her nature. This was when Daisy kissed her tenderly.

"I am so happy for you, darling!" she whispered. "Mr. Brandon is a wonderful man. My father admires him and respects him so much. And you love him—that makes your engagement to him beautiful. You and I still believe in the sweet, old-fashioned style of love."

Barbara did not speak, but clung to her friend.

Mary spoke eagerly. "Yes, I do, too. I believe it is a sin to marry without love."

Barbara seemed not to hear this remark. Instead, she addressed Daisy.

"Tell your mother about it, please dear. I would like her to know."

Daisy assured her that she would be glad to give the interesting news to her mother, who, it so happened, was out at present.

"Then the affair is to be regularly announced, is it?" Mary asked, "I suppose," tentatively, "that Robert Elliot will be surprised when he learns of it."

"He knows it already."

At the brief statement, Mary stared in astonishment.

"Oh—you mean that he knows you are engaged to Mr. Brandon! Bob Elliot knows it?"

"Yes—Bob Elliot knows it."

Barbara did not look at Mary as she replied. All her efforts were centred in keeping her voice steady and indifferent.

Daisy, always tactful, changed the subject to something less straining to the emotions. For a while she preferred to talk of light matters, for she, too, was puzzled.

A Matter for Astonishment

Robert knew of Barbara's engagement! Could he have known of it that evening when he talked with her—Daisy—out on the veranda, and spoke of the girl he loved? And later he had walked home with Barbara. Perhaps she had told him her secret on the way home. Could it be that she was actually engaged to John Brandon at that time?

Daisy started as she heard Mary asking the very question that was in her own mind.

"To return to the subject that is of the most interest to me just at this instant," Mary began—"have you been engaged long, Bab?"

Barbara smiled slightly. "Only twenty-four hours."

"But you knew before that time that Mr. Brandon loved you—didn't you?"

"Yes, I knew," Barbara said softly.

Then as a motor-horn sounded down the street, she raised her head. "Hark!" she ejaculated. "I must be going. I think that is Mr.——. I mean John, now."

She did not want her betrothed to come into the house. She felt as if she could not face the ordeal of listening to Mary's congratulations to him. Mary did talk so much!

"Good-bye!" she said, holding out her hand to the subject of these hurried thoughts. "I must be going."

Mary kissed her. "Good-bye, Bab! All kinds of luck! Congratulate Mr. Brandon for me. He's carried the prize off from all the younger men."

Barbara appeared not to notice the insinuation regarding her betrothed's age, but she heard it.

Daisy accompanied her as far as the front door. Here, obeying a sudden impulse, she spoke.

"I am going out to the automobile with you—if you don't mind. I want to speak to Mr. Brandon."

"I'd love to have you come," her friend assured her, sincerely. "But," dropping her voice to a lower pitch, "I did not want Mary."

"Mary means well," Daisy insisted. "She is tactless—that's all."

John Brandon came forward to greet the two girls, shaking hands with both—his head uncovered. Barbara tried not to notice how gray he was.

Daisy Congratulates

"Mr. Brandon," Daisy said, with characteristic frankness, wasting no time in preliminaries. "I want to tell you how happy I am for you and Bab. I congratulate you both, from the bottom of my heart."

John pressed her hand gratefully. "That means much coming from Bab's best friend," he said. "I thank you, as you have congratulated me, from the bottom of my heart."

Mary came out of the door as the car drove off and joined her hostess on the front porch. Together they stood watching until the automobile was out of sight.

"Some car!" Mary sighed. "Father says it is one of the handsomest in Summerfield—and that John Brandon can afford to get almost anything he wants."

"And that's the man Bab Paige is engaged to!"

"Yes," Daisy answered thoughtfully. "He is a good man, too. My father says that his word is as good as his bond."

"Well, Bab's lucky," Mary observed. "She's clever, too—keeping us in the dark until this affair—yet all the while accepting other fellows' attentions! Think of Tuesday night on the picnic—how she went up for the boat with Charles Bruisted, came back in a canoe with Tom White, and rode home in the car with Mr. Brandon! And two days before she'd been encouraging Bob Elliot. She's a flirt."

"Indeed she is not," Daisy protested. "She's on friendly terms with all those boys—that's all."

"Even with Bob Elliot?"

"Even with Bob Elliot. Otherwise he would not have been the first one of us to know of her engagement!"

Mrs. Solomon Says—

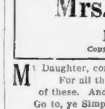
By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

My Daughter, consider the Wives of Babylon, how they dress.

For all the hours of Solomon's harem were not arrayed like one of these. And every one of them thinkeith herself a SIREN!!

Go to, ye Simple Ones! How long will ye continue to pin your faith upon a chiffon frill, and to waste your substance upon near-pearls and cloth-of-gold and foolish "heart bait"?



For lo, it is never the little brown wren in allwool, but the Bird of Paradise in all-silks, that figureth as leading lady in the divorce court. And no husband's heart hath ever yet been held by a silken corset string!

Behold, the sex appeal becometh louder and louder every day.

And the masculine response becometh feebler and feebler.

It hath come to pass that more and more silk hosiery is displayed season by season—yet the number of divorces keepeth pace therewith.

Lo, a man who once would walk a mile to look upon a pair of pretty ankles will not so much as glance up from his paper to gaze upon fifty silken ankles displayed half-way to the knee.

For these are his portion, today, yesterday and forever.

And all silk stockings look alike to him!

Yea, the women of Babylon have forgotten that it is not through his EYES, but through his IMAGINATION, that a man falleth in love!

How, then, shall a wife hold her husband's devotion in a world full of Loreleis and temptations?

Verily, verily, there is but one way in all the world to hold ANY man to thee for life, my Daughter—even to make thyself a NECESSITY unto him.

For, whether a man's wife be his backbone or only his rib; whether she be his spur or only his hitching-post, his inspiration or only his sedative, his foot stool or his headrest, he will cling unto her, so long as she is the one woman in all the earth whom he NEEDETH.

But she that ceaseth to make herself a "necessity," and entereth into competition with the luxuries, shall soon find the world filled with younger and more fascinating "luxuries."

Verily, verily, every woman may peradventure be a siren—but not unto her own husband!

Go to, ye Matrons of Babylon!

Let squabs and flappers and debutantes follow after beauty cures, and emulate show-girls and milliners' manikins.

But as for YOU, it signifieth not whether ye are clad in all-silk or in all-wool, or in calico, or in cloth-of-gold.

Selah.

Hats for the Hot Days

By Rita Stuyvesant

NOWADAYS fashionable women are sponsoring hats of organdy, for they are winsomly attractive and unusually becoming. Pale orchid, light ciel, peach, apricot, lettuce green, rose, beige, violet and hundreds of other smart shades are all represented. Even dark colors are being introduced for the more conservative matron.

These hats are rather large, to shade the face. Sometimes the crown is softly gathered into the brim, while others are of more tailored type. Dyeing brims, too, seem to be the vogue, with coquettish frills on the edge, concealing yet revealing Milady's eyes. And, of course, one must perch a huge crisp bow on the front to express charm.

Black hats of this kind are most interesting and may be worn with any light frock. For town wear many women select navy blue organdy, and there is quite an appeal for hats of brown to be worn with the popular organdy frock of that color. Gray, too, in a lovely silver shade is good for the matron whose hair is of the same color.

Dainty hats of simple charm are likewise offered in the new polka-dot organdy. Red and white is becoming to the vivid brunette and is very striking bowed in red organdy. Sometimes, the dotted hats are bound or edged in a plain shade with effective results.

A novel hat of pink organdy interprets the charm of youth delightfully with accordion sleated brim and small blue corn-flowers. Even the crown is pleated and the whole made over a foundation of plain material. It is not at all difficult to cover a bucrum frame with the organdy and it is wise to purchase an extra yard when planning a frock, as that you may have an individual hat to accompany it.

There are also some dainty combination hats, with brim of one color and crown of another.

Tin in the Hebrides

The recent discovery of deposits of surface tin and traces of other metals in the Hebrides has aroused considerable interest in archaeological circles, the theory having previously obtained that the tin used in the manufacture of Scottish bronze in prehistoric times had been imported from Cornwall. In this connection it is noted that Scottish bronze contains a larger proportion of lead than English bronze. The Gaelic word for tin is "staoin," which also means "pewter." Hebridean tin is said to have more than the usual proportion of lead. The discovery is also believed to have a bearing on the problem of the Cassiterides (Tin Islands) of classical writers. There are Gaelic tin place-names in the Hebrides and on the mainland.

Honest Talk

Mrs. Maginnis met Mrs. Moriarty at afternoon tea. Says Mrs. Maginnis: "How do you do, Mrs. Moriarty?" Says Mrs. Moriarty: "I am glad to see you and how do you do, not that I care a rap, but I always think that it helps along the conversation."

Alkali In Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

SHE wanted him dreadfully already. She had no pride left, no purpose, no threats. She just wanted to tag after him—knowing perfectly well that there could be no real equality of comradeship where youth and inexperience fettered her. She didn't care; she wanted him.

No deeper sentiment, nothing less healthy and frank than her youthful adoration for him, disturbed her sorrow. The companionship might have been actual as far as her affections had ever been concerned with him.

That she had at various intervals made of him a romantic figure altered nothing. Stainlessly her heart enshrined him; he was her ideal, hers; her brother, her idol, her paladin—the incarnation of all that was desirable and admirable in a boy, a youth, a young man.

Oswald Grismer.

Never in all her life had any youth interested her otherwise—save, perhaps, once—that time she had met Oswald Grismer after many years, and had danced with him—and was conscious of his admiration. That was the only time in her life when her attitude toward any man had been not quite clear—not entirely definable.

She wrote many pages to Cleland that night. And cried herself to sleep.

The next day her aunt came up from Bayport. And a week later, she went away to Bayport with Miss Quest to begin what seemed to her an endless penance of two years' hospital training.

The uniform was pink with white cuffs, apron and cap. She never forgot the first blood that soiled it—from a double mastoid operation on a little waif of twelve who had never been able to count more than six. She held sponges, horrified, crushing back the terror that widened her gray eyes, steeling herself to look, summoning every atom of strength and resolution and nerve to see her through.

CHAPTER XV.

THE usual happened to James Cleland; for the first two months in Paris he was intensely lonely. Life in an English-speaking pension near the Place de l'Etoile turned out to be very drab and wretchless after he returned to his rooms, fatigued from sightseeing and exploration. The vast silver-gray city seemed to him cold, monotonously impressive and oppressive; he was not in sympathy with it, being totally unaccustomed to the splendor of a municipal ensemble with all its beauty of reticence and good taste.

The vast vistas, the subdued loveliness of detail, the stately tranquility of this capital he did not understand after the sham, the ignorance, the noisy vulgarity of his native municipality.

Here were new standards; the gray immensity of the splendid capital gave him, at first, an impression of something flat and almost featureless under the horizon-wide sweep of sky. There were no skyscrapers. With exquisite discretion Notre Dame dominated the east, the silvery majesty of the Pantheon the south; in the west the golden bubble of the Invalides burned; the frail tracery of the Eiffel Tower soared from the city's centre.

And for the first two months he was an alien here, depressed, silenced, not comprehending, oblivious of the subtle atmosphere, of civil friendliness possessing the throngs which flowed by him on either hand, unaware that he stood upon the kindly hearthstone of the world itself, where the hospitable warmth never grew colder, where the generous glow was for all.

All was alien to him, all foreign; the English-speaking landlady of his pension, with her eternal cold in the head and her little shoulder shawl; the dreary American families from the Middle West who gathered thrice a day at the pension table; passing wayfarers to saw from the windows; red-legged soldiers in badly fitting uniforms, priests in shovel hats and black soutanes, policemen slouching by under cowled cloaks, their bayonets dangling; hatless, chattering shop girls, and the uninteresting types of civilian citizens; men in impossible hats and oddly awful clothes; women who all looked smart from the rear and dubious from the front.

Bear Oil Grows Hair

One of the potential ingredients of Kotalko—for the hair—is genuine bear oil, procured through hunters at a large cost. There are other active ingredients not found in any other hair preparation. Kotalko is not an ointment. It has succeeded in many cases of baldness, falling hair and dandruff which every other hair lotion or treatment has proved futile. $100 guarantee.

Why become or remain bald if you can grow hair? If others have obtained a new growth through Kotalko, why not you? Get it from a druggist or send 10 cents, silver or stamps, for trial package to John Hair Britain, BX-501 Station E, New York City. Show others this advt.

Absolutely New Method For Superfluous Hair

(Sure Way to Remove Roots and All)

Goodbye to depilatories, the electric needle, and the razor! Here at last is a method that removes superfluous hair completely, roots and all—easily, harmlessly, quickly! Nothing like it ever heard of before.

If you'd like to try this wonderful process, just get a stick of phelactine from your druggist, follow the simple instructions—and with your own eyes see the hair roots come out! See how perfectly smooth and hair-free your skin will be. Phelactine is non-irritating, odorless, and so harmless you could eat it!—Advertisement.

How You Can Remove Every Trace of Hair

(Toilet Talks)

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about 2 minutes will, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No harm can result from this treatment, but be sure it is delatone you get and you will not be disappointed. Mix fresh as wanted.—Advertisement.

Stocks Weak in Both Markets; New York Active on Decline; Call Money Opens at 9%

PRICES RECEDE IN BOSTON

More Activity on the Local Exchange; Few Issues Advance; Curb Irregular

The Boston market was weak at the opening and continued so during the morning. United Fruit and Amoskeag were the issues to recede the most. They dropped three points each before noon. Pacific Mills and Lawson were strong, the former advancing three and the latter one point. Trading was more active than usual of late and the market was of fair broadth. Copper continued quiet and firm a little lower.

Among issues to show small gains were Carson Hill and Swift International, while fractional losses were sustained by American Telephone, American Woolen preferred, United Shoe, Massachusetts Gas, Copper Range, East Butte, North Butte, Greg & Davis, Highcat, Atlas Tack and Eastern Manufacturing.

Issues to decline from one to five points included New Haven, Quincy, Lidder, Simms Magneto, Shawmut Recapping, New England Telephone, Swift & Co. and Mexican Investment.

CURB WAS IRREGULAR.

The Curb was irregular at the opening as to price trend and also dull. Eureka, Boston and Montana and Mutual showed the most activity in early trading and among issues to advance in the short term were Chalmette, Mandalay and Eureka. Weak issues were Arizona Commercial, Boston and Montana, Mutual and Madonna.

At the end of an hour Eureka was up 1 cent at 25 cents and Verde Mines 2 cents at 21 cents, while Alaska Divide was off 3 cents at 75 cents. Boston & Montana and Mutual had recovered early losses.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

New Cornelia copper production during the fiscal half year under report amounted to 21,462,000 pounds and sales and deliveries totaled nearly 20,000,000 pounds.

Newly organized Massachusetts corporations include the Cuba Sugar Corp., Boston, capital $100,000; Beverly Beach Amusement Co., of Waltham, capital $100,000; Natural Products Co., of Boston, capital $100,000, and Cardinal Trading Co., of Boston, capital $100,000.

William F. Stickney, vice-president and treasurer of the Metropolitan Trust Company of Boston, sailed for Europe from New York yesterday on the steamship Olympic. He will be away one month, during which he will omit the usual brief statement of the condition of the bank.

The Cuban fiscal year ended May 31 last, the receipts of the Republic totaling $49,644,580, against $37,101,628 in 1919, $35,462,861 in 1918 and $32,068,423 in 1917. After expenditures of $44,180,000 the net surplus for the year was $4,059,952, before profit sharing which compares with $3,763,000 in 1919, $4,189 in 1918 and $2,068,423 in 1917. After deducting the balance due on the Cuban Railroads (equivalent to 34 cents per ton) on first payments, the net surplus for the year was $2,000,000, against $1,000,000 in 1919.

During this year was the first month since the United Fruit began its operations that the lines report profitable operations. After all deductions the corporation's net profit for the first five days of this year it reports a surplus of $343,037.

Iron Cap production during May was 980,000 pounds of copper and 15,854 ounces of silver, President E. P. Knight reports $40

ADVISE WOMEN HOW TO VOTE

Mrs. True Worthy White, in Eighth Article, Describes the Ballot

Mrs. True Worthy White, of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, is writing for the Boston American a series of articles telling how to become registered for full suffrage in the Fall.

By MRS. TRUE WORTHY WHITE

We come now, in our talks on registration, to registration day in Massachusetts. What is the official ballot in our states? This is the ballot used at elections. Every precaution is taken in Massachusetts to have the voter protected in his voting rights, and to protect the public from election frauds. Only the official ballot prepared by the city or town clerks is used. For state elections, ballots must be prepared by the Secretary of the Commonwealth. These must be printed on white paper in black ink. On the back and outside of each ballot, when folded, will be found printed the words, "Official Ballot," followed by the number of the precinct and ward, or the name of the town for which the ballot is prepared.

Where voting machines are used, certain changes may be used in the form of ballot. At least five specimen ballots must be posted at the polling place. And "pasters," names of candidates not on the official ballot, must be provided.

FURNITURE MEN TO HOLD OUTING AT NANTASKET

"Feast and fun" is the slogan for the fifteenth annual outing of the Home Furnishers' Association of Massachusetts at Paragon Park, Nantasket Beach, August 11. Furniture men from all over the country will attend the big reunion, including a delegation from the Rhode Island Furniture Dealers' Association.

Every furniture association in New England has been invited to unite with the Bay State organization to make the celebration a big success. Governor Coolidge, Senators John J. Walsh and Speaker Joseph F. Warner of the Massachusetts House have been invited to address the gathering.

The program calls for community singing, illustrated songs, special play of fireworks, band concert, high diving act, acrobatic act, besides the many amusements afforded to the park. Dancing will be enjoyed.

The general committee in charge is representative of furniture dealers all over Massachusetts M. J. Sullivan of Lawrence is chairman. Other members are: J. Clarkson, Waltham; George L. Avery, Framingham; Hugh McLean, Hoitsbeer; Herman Adelkin, Springfield; A. E. Olcott, Lowell; I. H. Fowler, Worcester; Norman Pardit, Holyoke; W. C. Fuller, Mansfield; W. G. Shaw, Quincy, and L. F. Lambert, William McArthur, Victor C. Heath and Felix I. Smith, all of Boston.

CLAIM LIQUOR CAUSED CRASH IN LEXINGTON

The continued case of Edward F. Lynn of No. 78 Dix street, Dorchester, who was arraigned in the District Court at Concord charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, will come up for disposition tomorrow morning. Lynn was arrested by the Lexington police after the machine he was driving along Massachusetts avenue, in that town, crashed into a machine owned and driven by Mark Allen of Bonad street, Billerica, opposite the Munroe station. There was a woman in each car, but all escaped with nothing worse than a shaking.

MISSING DAUGHTER WAS JUST VISITING FRIENDS

Worcester, July 27.—Little Bernice Blauskas, aged six, is back today with her father, Casimir Blauskas, after missing the prize week-end of the young life. While her father on Saturday, Sunday and Monday frantically searched the police force and his "missing daughter," she was visiting friends on Greenwood street.

HELD FOR DEATH IN MOCK HOLDUP

Newburyport, July 27. — Ezra Langmaid of No. 113 Water street, was on July 3, while jokingly making a pretense at hold-up, accidentally shot his friend, James Chenard of No. 38 Temple street, was arraigned in the Police Court here on charge of manslaughter. He was pleaded not guilty and was held in $4,000 bonds for a hearing next Monday. Chenard died at the Anna Jaques Hospital.

BOY IS SERIOUSLY INJURED BY AUTO

Benjamin Fahevits, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fanavits of Quincy Point, was knocked down at Washington and Chickering streets by an automobile owned and operated by William E. Gallagher of No. 81 Edison street.

He received a fractured skull, a fractured left leg bone and possible internal injuries.

AMERICANS ATTEND VANDERBILT FUNERAL

Paris, July 27.—A tremendous tribute was paid to the memory of the late W. K. Vanderbilt, when practically every member of American society in Paris attended his funeral service at the American Church in the Avenue George V.

HIT BY LIGHTNING, BOY SLUMBERS 15 HOURS

Waitsfield, Vt., July 27.—Struck by lightning as he was passing between two automobiles, Carroll Bisbee, young son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bisbee, was restored to consciousness after a 15-hour sleep. He will suffer no permanent ill effects.

WINE AND CASH STOLEN FROM SPRINGFIELD POLICE

West Springfield, July 27.—Several gallons of wine and $45 in money were stolen by thieves who entered the police department headquarters in the Town Hall basement. The money was taken from a desk drawer. The wine was siphoned from the barrels.

AT BOSTON THEATRES

COMEDY BIG FEATURE AT KEITH'S

Alan Brooks, in a return of his latest one act comedy-drama, "Dollars and Sense," is the tuplin act of an unusually well balanced Summer bill at Keith's this week. Supported by a company of three, Mr. Brooks and his vehicle furnished thrills, amusement and several surprises. The piece is well written and well acted and went so big with the audience that Mr. Brooks was obliged to make a curtain speech.

Joe Cook, billed "The Humorist, the one Man Vaudeville Show," whose act followed that of Mr. Brooks, would have stopped the show had the act been placed at an earlier part of the bill. With a grotesque assistant and comedy scenery, Cook had the house in an uproar with his chatter and "imitations" during the entire eighteen minutes he was on.

Another act that pleased was Al Raymond and Tom Schram in "A Syncopated Cocktail," a sidewalk act. Both members of the team are well known here for their cleverness and introduced a wealth of new material that got them merited applause.

Other acts on the bill worthy of mention were Rudinoff, originator of smoke painting on the stage, his act, "The Courtship of the Nightingale;" William Le Maire, W. C. Hayes & Company in "The American Ace of Spades," Eva Shirley and Al Roth, with a jazz band, songs and dances; Flanders and Millies, eccentric dancing comedians and Redford and Winchester, a pair of clever jugglers. The reel of Kinograms and Topics of the Day rounded out the program.

PARK THEATRE—Charles Ray pleasantly surprised his most ardent admirers in the Paramount-Artcraft picture, "The Egg Crate Wallop," which opened at the Park Theatre for a two days' run. The picture is filled with delightful charm and wholesomeness. Another, Dorothy Gish laugh-maker is coming to the Park Theatre. This time it is "Turning the Tables," which will be seen on Wednesday and Thursday. Maurice Tourneur's production, "The Life Line," is scheduled for Friday and Saturday.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—"Eight Black Dots," presented by Joe Sheftel, in which a company of eight talented people give a "mixed musical" in colors, styled "Celebration Day in Tennessee," topped an excellent bill of variety at Loew's Orpheum this week. Companion acts for the first half of the week include Thomas E. Dunn, dialectician; Mason & Shaw, Dorothy Dove, the French Refugee, Bower and Dody in a series of popular acts; Van and Telley in spectacular equilibristic stunts. The motion picture portion of the bill is headlined by Blanche Sweet in "The Girl in the Web."

GLOBE THEATRE—Blanche Sweet in "The Girl in the Web" is the headline attraction for the first half of the week, at Loew's Globe Theatre.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—Gordon's Olympia Square Olympia and Gordon's Olympia, Washington street, Dorchester, open today with Vee and Tully in spectacular equilibristic stunts. The motion picture portion of the bill is headlined by Blanche Sweet in "The Girl in the Web."

GLOBE THEATRE—Blanche Sweet in "The Girl in the Web" is the headline attraction for the first half of the week, at Loew's Globe Theatre.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—Gordon's Olympia Square Olympia and Gordon's Olympia, Washington street, Dorchester, open today with Vee and Tully in spectacular equilibristic stunts. The motion picture portion of the bill is headlined by Blanche Sweet in "The Girl in the Web."

MODERN AND BEACON—Robert Warwick has the role of a spy of the Secret Service in "The Fourteenth Man," in which he is featured at the Modern and Beacon Theatres this week. He is a Twentieth Century knight of the old school who will fight from the drop of the hat for a fair lady or an underdog.

An unusually appealing story of love and conflict is woven against a colorful Spanish background in "The World and the Woman," adapted from the stage play in which William Faversham starred. Alma Rubens is featured.

BOSTON THEATRE—A group of talented Boston girls, The Wyman Dancers, topped the vaudeville bill at the Boston Theatre, in good singing and terpsichorean specialties.

Roscoe Arbuckle, in "Fatty Joins the Navy," and Harold Bell Wright's picture feature, "The Eyes of the World," was the headliner at the Howdoin Square Theatre. Earle Williams in "Captain Swift," a story by Maurice Tourneur, Eddie Polo in "The Vanishing Dagger," delighted in good measure.

PEOPLES—NOTICE "HEARTS"—"The Love Expert," starring Constance Talmadge, was shown at Gordon's Cambridge Central Square Theatre.

OPENING ATTRACTIONS AT SHUBERT THEATRES

The opening attractions at the Shubert Theatres in Boston will be "Kissing Time," at the Shubert, August 23; "Irene," at the Tremont, August 16; "Turn to the Right," at the Arlington, August 16; "The Little Whopper," at the Majestic, August 23, and, "Martinique," at the Plymouth, August 23.

Crescent Gardens

Boulevard Closed

The Mystic Parkway boulevard in Arlington has been temporarily closed for repairs in the surfacing of the road. This highway is used daily by hundreds of machines.

Revere Beach

Interest continues at Revere Beach in the thrilling exhibitions of Tommy Potter, the daring aviator, and Daredevil Jack Murphy, world-renowned parachute jumper.

CREATORE AND HIS FAMOUS BAND HERE

Creatore and his band of celebrated musicians are scoring a big hit at Symphony Hall. They opened a four-day festival last night and judging by the applause and many encores the mid-Summer engagement promises to be a huge success.

The famous band-master has lost none of his singularity. Without baton, he leads his musicians with plenty of gusto that makes one "feel" the music. Creatore is of the old-type leader. He sways his body with both hands and a string of the shoulders, but by nodding his head.

Every whim of his is rigidly obeyed by a well-trained band, for a master-leader he is. Creatore knows quite well how to bring out the proper expression of a piece. It is interesting to see him from one section of the orchestra to another.

Tonight he will render selections from "Faust," by Gounod, and a suite by Creatore called "Irish Caprice." The band is being assisted by Lina Palmieri, a daughter of Italy. She has a voice of no small ability, notwithstanding one very much of Galli-Curci.

She sang selections from the "Barber of Seville" and "La Traviata" last night. This evening her solos are from "Lucia" and "Rigoletto" and Massenet's "Lakme." There also will be a clarinet solo from Boetni's "Stabet Mater" by Signor Da Mitri.

Plays That Remain

TREMONT THEATRE—The reputed fell properties attached to the numerical 13 fail to appear in the case of "Mary," which has begun its baker's dozen of weeks at the Tremont Theatre. A good omen whatever she is proving the most welcome that has graced these "parts" and Boston is showing its hospitality by the manner in which everybody is seeking to make her stay pleasant.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—Mary Pickford in her best photoplay, "Suds," began the last week of her engagement at the Majestic Theatre.

TREMONT TEMPLE—Helen Keller in "Deliverance," the beautiful photoplay dealing with the life and the love story of the world's most famous blind woman, began the second week of its engagement at Tremont Temple.

At the Parks

PARAGON PARK—Paragon Park, the Summer playground of Greater Boston, and its fascinating Garden, are now at the height of their season. The wealth of varied attractions, ranging from the score of entertaining acts and dancing "in the Palm Garden, to the great Hippodrome, "The Witching Waves," makes this an ideal spot for the amusement seeker.

NORUMBEGA PARK—Norumbega Park this week. In addition to the dance orchestra in the Casino, the military band, which plays for the open air concerts, and the concert orchestra of twenty-five pieces in the theatre, Ralph Smalley, the famous cellist, and the Copley Male Quartette are featured on the large program in the theatre.

Pemberton Inn

Lively entertainment, first-class opportunities for dancing, and good food are the drawing cards at Pemberton Inn, the de luxe dining place of the South Shore.

MRS. GIBBONS, MOTHER OF TWO PRIESTS, DEAD

Mrs. W. J. Gibbons, mother of two priests, the Reverends John and Edward Gibbons, both of Washington, D. C., died suddenly at Green Hill, Natchaug Trail, Dorchester, yesterday afternoon. Funeral arrangements are delayed pending the arrival of her husband, W. J. Gibbons, who was in Virginia, and of Sister Mary Agnes, Miss I. Marguerite, in the family. The Gibbons family is well known in Hull and Cohasset.

MEASURES THAT WOULD CURE MOST OF THE TROUBLES AND TENDENCIES WHICH DISTRESS AND ALARM US TODAY

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

Influence Will Open the Road to Success

Most of us want Power. What we need is Influence.

There's a difference between what we Want and what we Need. We may Want to be kissed, for instance, yet we may Need to be kicked.

What we Want is always something to gratify our desires; what we always need is something to improve our quality.

We want Power because Power sates the most primitive of all lusts, the craving for superiority.

At the bottom of every fight, whether on the battlefield, in the stock market or in the Senate, is the desire of one man to get the better of another.

That is the secret of Evolution, for it is the core of competition and insures the Survival of the Fittest.

It is natural, hence it is right. You ought to want to be better than the other fellow, to dominate him, to bend him to your will.

The only thing that is wrong is the means you take to accomplish this.

If you overcome another by Force you are brutal. If you master him by Influence you are civilized. Influence is moral, Force is immoral. Influence is helpful, builds up, is productive, Force is harmful, breaks down, is destructive.

Because Influence is genuine power, Force is a swindler.

Influence is the sheer, naked, unadulterated power of your Personality. It flows from what you Are. Force comes, not from what you Are, but from what you Have, whether Money, Position, or a Gun. In any case your success through Force does not come to you because you are really superior, but because you have borrowed something which lends you superiority.

Great souls strive to get Influence; small souls scheme to get Power.

Force pushes men; Influence pulls them.

Force degrades, humiliates its object; Influence strengthens, develops the person influenced. (All this, of course, assumes that both the Force and the Influence in question are good, that the purpose is benevolent. In case the exertion is evil, then naturally Influence is worse than Power. The whole point here is that it is more effective, in any case).

Power easily runs to excess; in Influence there is no excess.

Power or Force awakens antagonism; Influence creates co-operation.

Influence makes for peace and prosperity; Force produces conflict and tragedy.

Force is a doctor who would cure criminals by hurting them; Doctor Influence would cure by helping them.

The superiority of Influence over Force is what is meant by the saying "The pen is mightier than the sword." Russia under the Czar was governed by Force; the United States is governed by Influence, the massed Influence of the strongest minds expressed in Public Opinion.

You can inherit Power, or buy it, or grab it, or get it by clever dealing; but there is no short cut to Influence—you have to earn every drop of it.

When you beat a child, or cow a woman, or punish a law-breaker, or suppress an opinion, or compel any one to do anything by means of any sort of a club, you are a fool, for you think you have cheated the universe and its cosmic laws.

All your Force thus exerted will return some day as a boomerang. This is the deepest of natural laws; that action is equal to reaction, and "they that take the sword shall perish by the sword."

But when you control a child by care and intelligence, influence a woman by love, mend a lawbreaker by justice and a fair environment, correct a wrong opinion by a right one, and altogether get your way by the force of your character, by your mind force and heart force and conscience force, then you have gained a real victory, for yourself, for the object of your exertions and for mankind.

Men like to be swayed by reason, by love and by any dynamic of Influence. They resent being Forced.

The era of Force is drawing to a close. It has been thick with horrors. The day of triumphant Influence is dawning.

If you want to be Great, increase your Influence.

If you want to be a Little soul in a great place, seek Power.

How About England's Six Votes to One?

Is This Explanation Simple Enough?

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

Mr. Walter C. Patterson, of No. 419 West Twenty-third street, New York City, wants an explanation about the "six votes for England to one vote for America" in the Peace League.

Mr. Patterson writes: "Having read quite a number of articles on the League of Nations, pro and con, would you be so kind as to expound how England obtains six votes to America's one? This paramount question has caused a great deal of ill-feeling among Americans, and for the reason I believe that it has not been explained in a clear manner."

England and her big colonies—Canada, Australia, etc.—being united, have naturally the same interests. Any one or all of these colonies might at any time be admitted to full membership in the League, thus standing on a par with England herself or the United States. If and when that happened the British Empire would cast six votes to our one. England being governed by very able statesmen, not by vote-hunting politicians, it is quite probable that the matter would be SOON attended to.

Meanwhile what would be MORE important if this country were trapped in a League of Nations would be not mere official voting power, but the INFLUENCE OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE in the League of Nations. British capital, active all over the world, and the British fleet controlling, would have more to say than mere votes assigned to this or that nation.

More Truth Than Poetry

The Word of Cheer

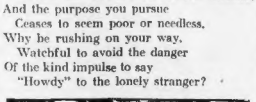
By S. E. KISER

A FRIENDLY greeting on the way
Helps to make the morning brighter.
Starts you on a pleasant day,
Makes your task a little lighter;
A passing nod, a cheerful smile,
Or a good word said sincerely,
Makes your effort seem worth while,
Keeps the high goal gleaming clearly.

IF beyond the things we see
There's a heaven where we shall waken,
Can you think that there will be
Lonely spirits there, forsaken?
Spirits left to stray alone,
By no others ever greeted,
Passing friendless and unknown
Through eternities repeated?

IF, beyond the hidden brink
That we travel to at present,
There's a heavenly sphere, I think
Friendliness will make it pleasant,
And I think the spirits there
Wonder, if they watch us meeting,
Why we pass and seldom care
To speak friendly words of greeting.

JUST a friendly word or two
Where the crowds rush onward, heedless,
And the purpose you pursue
Ceases to seem poor or needless.
Why be rushing on your way,
Watchful to avoid the danger
Of the kind impulse to say
"Howdy" to the lonely stranger?



Discourses of a Scientist

By Edgar Lucien Larkin,

Director Mount Lowe Observatory

AS I write I am holding radium in my left hand; it is the most wonderful kind of matter known. Its atom contains eighty-eight electrons, and they are now leaving the mass of radium bromide at a rate of 500 per second; and the New York Radium Company guarantees that it will so radiate during fifteen years. This matter was not created; it was formed. Only electrons need to have been created so far as science can now see "in the beginning."

This leads to one of the most wonderful ideas that ever entered the minute fraction of mind now phasing as the human mind. These ideas are: Electrons either know of themselves how, when and where to count out themselves and start revolution to form atoms of matter, or are directed how to count, assemble and move. The first process is activity; the second directivity. In both cases the process is mental. If activity reigns, mind is inside of the electrons; if directivity, then mind is outside the electrons, but immediately adjacent. For let humans count 62, 79 or, say, 88 separate bodies, and they will make mistakes. But the Master hath not made error. All who have read my articles written since the discovery of radium by Madame Curie in December, 1899, know that I have written in favor of directivity, for there is a magnificent Master Creative Mind. The structures of all of the now known 92 atoms are different.

The inconceivable quantity of matter now stored in three billion colossal suns may almost be ignored in comparison with the mighty unseen. Robert Andrews Millikan isolated one electron in 1911, weighed it and thus startled the entire scientific world. The diameter of an electron, or, rather, its field of force, is so excessively minute that a row of them one inch long, side by side in contact—impossible by humans, as they are electricity and repel—would contain 4,350,000,000,000. And nothing exists but electrons.

BECAUSE OUR friend.
HAD A little girl.
AND A little boy.
WE ONE day said.
IF THEY'D be good.
WE'D COME some day.
AND GET them all.
AND HAVE a picnic.
BESIDE A lake.
WHERE THEY could paddle.
IN THEIR little bare feet.
AND SO we did.
AND SOMEONE sent us.
TO GREENWOOD Lake.
THAT LIES somewhere.
IN JERSEY hills.
AND WE found the lake
AND THEY clapped their hands.
AND BROTHER said.
HE WAS "goin' in wimmin'."
AND SISTER said.
"I'M GOING in, too.
"AREN'T I, mother?"
AND WE said we were.
AND WENT along.
TO WHERE the road,
WOUND 'ROUND the lake,
AND FOUND a place.
WHERE A big point ran out.
BUT A big sign said.
THAT WE must keep out.
AND WE traveled on.
AND EVERYWHERE.
WERE "PRIVATE" signs.
AND WE'D be arrested.
IF WE dared trespass.
AND IT mattered not.
THAT THE land was there.
IN ITS virgin state.
AND WHOEVER owned it.
WAS MILES away.
FOR THEIRS was the right.
BY FORCE of law.
AND WE didn't stop.
AND THE boy and the girl.
DIDN'T GO in "wimmin'."
AND I feel quite sure.
IF THEY'D asked God.
WHAT TO do about it.
HE WOULD have said.
TO GO on in.

FADING LOVE NOT MAN'S MISTAKE ALWAYS

By Beatrice Fairfax

"MY heart is broken. I'm ashamed and unhappy and I'm afraid love is a thing of the past.

He hadn't any reason for treating me this way. I cared a lot for him and did everything in my power to make him happy So why did he have to humiliate me by making a fuss over that woman right under my eyes. I saw it, I tell you. He preferred her to me."——

I threw the letter down in something verging on alarm. It was the eleventh of its kind I'd read in one day's mail.

Eleven women complaining of the disloyalty and fickleness and general cruelty of the men folks. Eleven women recounting over and over the tale of how man can belittle his wife or fiancee by "carrying on" with "another woman." And eleven men behaving with a gay Lothario flirtatiousness which these eleven letters would seem to indicate is almost standardized as the treatment accorded the feminine half of the world by those unreliable creatures known as men.

Human nature is pretty good part of the time and pretty bad part of the time and heroic some of the time and pesky and cruery and such things the rest of the time. We're all mixed up—good and bad. And in spite of the old nursery rhyme, "little girls" are not always made of sugar and spice and everything nice." No—most girls have a dash of spice to the sugar and maybe a touch of vinegar and possibly more peppy snappiness than some folks think they need. And as human nature's made of good and bad mingled, so men are to blame for some things that go wrong, and women for others, and the human balance swings about even.

I came across a bit of philosophy in a moving picture theatre the other day. I wonder if it doesn't cover the case. This is the way it read:

"Women are all as old as the world. Men come up green every Spring."

Lambs gambol, kittens frolic, boys whoop and run about like young Indians when the Spring comes back. Well, men are boys grown up. Why not smile when they frolic and still smiling meet them half way when they come home tired out from play?

For they do come home—and if the door is open and a welcome waits home seems all the lovelier for the foolish little journey away from its warmth and beauty.

Stars and Stripes

Consulting the old files to "get something on Cox" is needless, when you consider how much his 1920 support of the League of Nations condemns him.

An antiquarian has discovered that meals in the best New York hotels once—in 1675—cost twelve cents each and a night's lodging six cents. But why tease?

Greece is going to war with Turkey again and may be expected to call for the usual assistance in letting go.

John Jones admits that he is great,
Admits that no man's greater,
wiser;
He's selling shoestrings near a gate;
He should have been an advertiser.

Promising Coolidge a listening role in his Cabinet shows that Harding can be cruel as well as kind.

The tanners complain that the prices of leather are "not what they should be." We've been telling the tanners that for a long time.

I wonder if the profiteer is hoping, when he dies,
That he may read his title clear to mansions in the skies?

Official prophecies of more sugar soon are coupled with predictions of higher prices. The only market certainty these days is that the consumer must pay.

MYSTERY OF LANGUAGE AND THE MIND

By Garrett P. Serviss

"In a person born deaf and dumb and never educated able to think? Thinking as we know it is unconsciously forming a series of unspoken words in the brain. Not having any language known to them, in what way, if any, do such persons form their thoughts, or are their actions governed entirely by instinct?"—H. J. B., Chicago.

IT is a mistake to suppose that there can be no thought without words. No language expresses more than a fraction of the thinking done by the mind. If you will carefully analyze your mental operations you will see that thoughts precede words, and words are sought simply as a medium through which the thought can be impressed upon other minds or as a means of outward expression and communication.

Observe what a multitude of thoughts occur to which no words correspond, and which, if you communicate them at all, find expression only through actions or signs. A man speaks through his eyes, his fingers, arms, every attitude and motion, the flushing and paling of his skin—an unspoken, unwritten language oozes from him. Words do not give birth to this; that would be impossible because words are the product of thought, invented for its use.

This universal and multiform expression of thought, in which every part of the body under the immediate control of the brain shares, is as much a part of the native equipment of the deaf-and-dumb person as of the man born with perfect hearing.

Thought Has Lifted World

Before discussing that fact, however, consider this: If language preceded thought, and if thinking consisted in forming "unspoken words in the brain," there could have been no intellectual advance made by the human race. The ideas that lifted man from savagery to civilization did not have their birth in words; they gradually dawned in the mind, and then language was invented to give them currency and definiteness, so that many minds might grasp them and understand them in the same sense.

When Wordsworth saw the statue of Newton "with his prism and silent face," there dawned in his mind the thought, which he afterward wrought into words, that this was:

"The marble index of a mind forever
Voyaging through strange seas of thought alone."

None of those words shaped or preceded the thought in the poet's mind, and Wordsworth himself no doubt would have said that the full richness of that thought, as he conceived it in the presence of the statue, was not expressed in the words with which he sought to picture it to other minds. Language hampers thought, limits, confines, distorts and misrepresents it. Every writer and speaker feels that.

Not Expressible in Words

Consider, too, that Newton's thoughts were not expressible in words. He had to invent a mathematical language for them before they could be communicated, even in part, to his fellow men. Einstein's thoughts, in developing his theory of relativity with all its astonishing sequences, was entirely independent of language. It is a kind of cry of despair that he utters when he says that there are not more than ten men in the world who can understand him.

Well, there is no reason known, none developed by 200 years of expert study of the subject, why a deaf-mute might not be born with the mental powers of a Newton or an Einstein. It is a great mistake to assume that the deaf-mute owes his intelligence to his education, which has taught him to read other people's language and to express himself by means of an artificially developed system of signs.

Says Rev. Arnold H. Payne, an authority on this subject: "The deaf child expresses himself in the sign language of his own accord. If the deaf boy meets with some one who will use gesture to him, a new sign will be invented, as occasion requires, by one or the other, to express a new idea, and if it be a good one it is tacitly adopted to express that idea, and so an entire language is built up." And again he says: "Signs are a more beautiful language than English and provide possibilities of a wealth of expression which English does not possess and which probably no other language possesses."
